THE NONANTUM CRICKET CLUB

The game of cricket is played wherever Englishmen go to live, from Australia to Canada. Even in China and India they play it, and upon the black lava beds of the Cape Verde Islands; but it does not appear to have been imported in the Mayflower and has never taken a deep root in this country except in the city of Philadelphia. The reason for this, is that the wealthy young men of Boston and New York do not take an interest in it—which is a pity, for as James D'Wolfe Lovett says in his book on old Boston boys, it is one of the noblest games ever invented by man. There is no other field sport which requires so much skill, study and experience to make an accomplished player of it. Baseball may be learned in a single season, but it requires years of practice to become a cricketer at all. It also requires much more courage than any field sport except football, and this without being in the least brutal. The single objection to it, which is decidedly and American objection, is the amount of time it requires. Two and sometimes three days are occupied by the great English matches; and where individual players make more than a hundred runs this is not to be wondered at. There is nothing like making a big score at cricket. It requires qualities of mind and character as well as physical aptitude.

Ball playing in any case is an intellectual and not a physical gift. It would seem to be a faculty for estimating curves. We do not strike at where the ball is but where it is going to be a second later. This is still more evident in the fielding of fly catchers. A slow man cannot become a good ball player, but there are many quick men who cannot do it any better. I had two friends in my youth, both distinguished athletes and at least as quick as I was, and yet they never could play ball at all. George Wright, Lovett, and Joslin could play baseball and cricket equally well, and John A. Lowell, the catcher of the Bowdoin, the first good ball club organized here, once played in a cricket match and distinguished himself by making the best score on either side; but such players are rare. I found that playing cricket weakened my ball playing, especially in batting.

Cricket was played at Harvard as early as 1825, and I have heard graduates of that time speak of it with enthusiasm, but it was not played in a very scientific manner. The first good cricket in this vicinity was introduced thirty years later by some emigrants from the British provinces who formed the nucleus of the Boston Cricket Club. Although the two best batsmen, Draper and Blanchard were Americans. They imported two terrible fellows from New Brunswick, both natural bowlers who could bowl more easily than they could throw—Martin and O'Brien, literally wicket smashers. In this way they made up a pretty strong team; but the quality of it was a good deal mixed, for they took anybody into that club who had five dollars to spare for the purpose. I remember one fellow belonging to the large family of Sullivan, who borrowed a pair of spiked shoes, and finding them to short for his feet, cut the toes off and returned them in that condition.

About the same time cricket clubs formed by British mechanics sprung up at Lowell, Shelburne Falls and Fall River, and the boys on Boston Common formed junior clubs which graduated a number of fine players.

William Linder's father started the well known firm of Linder and Meyer in Boston and sent his son to Harvard college in 1859. William graduated in '63, and then went to London for a year, where he became greatly interested in cricket, and on his return to Newton, he organized the Nonantum Club with the help of his friends, Charles Bixby of Cambridge, also a Harvard man, and Bruce Collier, a Boston Englishman. Two good bowlers, Charles Mixer and John Wilder, joined it from Boston Common. George Jones, Walter Page, the two Severances and Louis Wood were active Newton members; and I remember the names of Parker, Ely, Thayer, Fay and Brackett. Frank Stearns of the Harvard ball club joined in the autumn of 1865 and became a permanent member of the eleven.

At first the club met with some reverses, as newly formed organizations are apt to do. We were defeated by the Dorchester Club and the Waltham Club—what the boys called "the horns,"—but we won the return match against Dorchester in the autumn and defeated the Salem Club shortly afterwards. Linder, Wilder and Mixer did the bowling in these matches.

William Linder recognized that in order to improve the quality of his eleven, they must play matches with better players than themselves. Accordingly he arranged a match the following season with the Boston second eleven of which it was said, that in order to beat it, it was necessary first to beat the Boston first eleven, for they were sure to smother a number of their first players into it. They did this on the present occasion, but the Nonantum Club though beaten made a creditable showing, and profited by this lesson to defeat the New York second eleven shortly afterwards. In the same year we commenced a long series of matches with the Chelsea Club, in some of which they were successful and others not; the final advantage however resting with the Nonantums. Stearns' underhand bowling was found to be effective in disposing of the tail of an eleven. There were now three Linders in the eleven, Will, George and Tom. Parker and Fay were also added to the eleven. George Jones retired on account of business engagements and Wilder exchanged cricket for matrimony.

The following season, Linder, ambitious to make a first class club of us, engaged an English professional named Hammond, and his father purchased a fine square ground at the top of the first hill between Newton Corner and Boston,—a ground which I was unable to locate when I looked for it some years since. There is no better class of Englishman in their way, than the cricket professionals, and Billy Hammond was a fair representative of them. He had none of the self conceit of the professional athlete, and nobody in the club was better liked. He was a small man but with an excellent figure and the eye of a hawk. He was a straight bowler but not so effective as Linder or perhaps Mixer; and strange to say he did not play a straight bat, which is the first rule of a good batsman, and yet I have never seen the cricketer who could make runs so fast as Hammond if he once got his eye in. He was as likely as any of us to be caught on the first over but he made scores of thirty, forty, fifty and sixty in different matches, and that against the best bowling.

The Nonantum Club might now have been considered almost ideal. William Linder managed affairs without seeming to manage them, and knew better than to give his players advice when they were going in to bat. His rare criticisms were always just and discriminating, and the pleasantness of his own nature impressed itself on all about him. On one occasion when I seemed likely for a score, he sent my friend Page to me to advise me not to play forward so much; but Page added, "use your own judgment." There was no ill feeling what ever on the Nonantum grounds; nor any bad language or profanity that I can recollect, except when the Boston and New York clubs played there.

With the assistance of Hammond we easily defeated the suburban clubs, with the exception of the Salems which had engaged O'Brien as a bowler, and he was really the best bowler in the country,—much better than any professional. Soon afterwards he became distinguished as the pitcher of the Tri Mountain Ball Club. On the fourth of July we played the Boston first eleven, but they brought out the strongest team they had ever collected, including two English professionals, Blanchard, Draper, and a New Yorker named Jardine. The result was that we were badly beaten, but the feeling of the Nonantums was better than the Boston's, and in the second innings, Hammond and Stearns got together and ran up a score of nearly fifty runs before they were parted. Age makes a great difference in cricket, and the youngest man in the Boston eleven was older than Bixby, the senior member of our club. Hammond's idea that he could bowl the Boston players, proved to be a fallacy.

It was at this time that Linder discovered the art of bowling what were called break-backs; that is balls that twisted in from the off side. Players who have formed the habit of cutting at balls on the off side, find it difficult to deal with, and are apt to give catches from them. In this way Linder once took Draper on the first ball. Tom Linder caught it. Parker and Jones were both capital long-stops.

Mixer never learned to twist a ball, but he was a remarkable straight bowler with a very good pitch. The whole secret of cricket lies in delivering the ball so that it will strike the ground beyond the reach of the batsman, and yet near enough to prevent his seeing it distinctly after it rises.

Mixer once bowled me five such balls in succession right on the middle stump, so that I had to block every one of them. The sixth ball was a little to leg, and I made six runs on it.

The great match of this year, 1867, was played at Newton, between a picked eighteen of the Nonantum and Salems clubs, and the Young America club of Philadelphia. The main strength of the Young America's resided in their chief bowler, Charles Newhall, the swiftest bowler in the world, whose balls raced past the wicket at the rate of a mile a minute. He was almost a giant in stature, and delivered the ball with a straight arm over his head, so that it flew up at the batsman in a truly dangerous manner. He broke the jaw of Pomeroy of the St. George club, and came near killing the president of his own club. Batting against him was more like going into battle than ordinary cricket playing, and it is to be hoped that the like of him will never be seen again.

Talking with O'Brien the evening before the match, he gave his opinion that we would win it; and so we did. The feeling of the eighteen kept down the score of the Young America and Newhall's bowling kept down the score of the Salem and Nonantum; but in the second innings Will Linder and Stearns made a stand together that won the game. Linder cut a ball from Charles Newhall down to the gate for four runs, and Stearns hit him to leg for five. The excellent bowling of Horace Perkins of Salem was also instrumental in affecting the result.

In the evening Wm. Linder senior gave a generous banquet to the twenty-nine players.

In the following season, 1868, after defeating the Harvard club twice, without Hammond, and beating the Boston club in two practice games, we started on a tour to New York and Philadelphia, playing cricket from Monday morning till Friday night. Our first match was with the Willow club of Brooklyn, and in this game Hammond and Stearns again made a stand together, batting the ball about the field for more than an hour for nearly sixty runs, of which Hammond made about two-thirds. Bixby also made a good score, and we had so many runs to spare that it seems a pity we could not have made use of them on the following day in the match with the New York club which proved to be a very stiff contest. The New Yorkers brought out a strong team, including Hudson, a famous bat of those times, and the score stood at about seventy to sixty-five in their favor. Tom Linder distinguished himself in the game by a difficult left hand catch at point and by hitting a big ball across a brook for six runs. Mixer also bowled remarkably well.

In Philadelphia we were the guests of The Young America club and they certainly treated us handsomely; but it was said in those days that no other club could beat the Young America on their own ground, and we found it so. It was not a turf ground at all, but a clay soil rolled so as to be as hard and almost as smooth, as a board. It was a fine cricket ground for those who were used to it, but the reason why Young America was defeated at Newton was probably owing to the thick turf of our ground. Linder's break backs would not work on the Young America's ground and our entertainers rolled up a big score. The same thing happened there to the Boston club, two years before.

The effect of the difference of grounds was exemplified the following day Friday, in our match with the Germantown club, whose ground was the finest I have ever played on. By good bowling and fielding we kept down the score of our adversaries, who made about seventy runs in each innings. At the close of the first innings the Nonantums had a fair chance to win. Stearns made twenty-eight against Meade, a beautiful left hand bowler, who afterwards bowled with Charles Newhall against the All England eleven, and others made smaller scores; but in the second innings, Stearns was foolishly run out by Hammond on the very first over. Hammond was bowled by Meade immediately afterward, and this would seem to have discouraged the rest of the eleven, for they all went out for small figures. Morgan of the Germantown club hit Hammond to square leg for seven runs, but it would not have been a seven hit if anybody but Tom Smallwood had fielded the ball.

The Philadelphia expedition was the pleasantest experience in our cricketing years. We met gentlemen there and were treated like gentlemen. There was no bitterness in the rivalry between the clubs, and we were not obliged to hear unpleasant remarks.

In the following August we had our revenge on the New York club in a match played on the Newton grounds. Our first innings of a hundred and twenty odd runs, decided the game. Hammond made sixty, Bixby twenty, and Will Linder fifteen. The succeeding match with the Boston club was lost by a lack of strategy. We made the most in the first innings, but a short score in the second; so that nothing was required to win but to delay the game until sunset. This might have been done by means of swift bowling—Louis Wood and Sanderson—but nobody thought of it until after the game was over.

In September the All England eleven of professionals came to this country and gave the finest exhibition of ball playing that I have ever seen,—something much better than Dr. Grace's team of gentlemen which came four years later. Linder wished to have the match on the Newton grounds—the only suitable place for it—but the committee of the Boston club wanted to make money on it, and insisted on having it played at the Riverside Trotting Park. The net result was that they lost several hundred dollars on their speculation, and as Willshir, the English captain said, a "stubble field at home would be better." The low tone of the Boston club was always an injury to cricket in this section.

W. Linder Hammond, Boot Bixby, Stearns and T. Linder were selected for the match on our club; but going to the bat against such bowlers as Freeman and Torrent merely meant to lose your wicket on the first or second over. Even Hammond could not make runs against them. They were not quite so swift as Newhall, but much more accurate and effective. Jupp batted against Charles Newhall for nearly two hours; and the burly Griffiths drove him ahead, again and again for three and four runs. It was a remarkable feat of human strength and skill. When Freeman went to the bat, he hit at the first ball that was bowled, but it shot and took his wicket, for which his companions laughed at him heartily. Many a good player has met with the same luck.

In 1869 the Nonantum club maintained the good position it had gained without, however, winning any fresh laurels. The chief sensation of the year was the surprising development of Tom Smallwood as a batsman and a bowler, one of the slightest figures in the club, he nevertheless became its hardest hitter, and his bowling was fairly equal to Linder's. In 1870 we won a victory over every club that was willing to play with us, including the Boston. We had commenced at the foot and came out at the top.

This however, was the last year of the Nonantum Cricket Club. In 1869 Hammond left us to become keeper of the Boston base ball grounds, but he died of pneumonia shortly afterwards. William Linder also died in 1871 of a hereditary complaint which many supposed to have been hastened by violent exercise under our hot sun. If this was the case it was a very exceptional one, for I have never heard of another instance like it. Of all classes of athletes ball players are the most healthy and longest lived. Some years later Fay met me in Boston and talking of old times he said, "I miss William Linder every week;" and for my part I can say that I never had a truer or a kinder friend. Once when my spiked shoes disappeared and I could not find them, he hunted them up and brought them to me. Tom Linder distinguished himself in 1872 by making the best score against All England eleven of any cricketer in the United States.

COVER POINT
MR. ALLEN DEAD

William C. Allen died Friday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Edward E. Fernald, at 31 Newell road, Auburndale, aged 94 years.

William Cowper Allen was born on Jan. 20, 1815, in the old Castle Hill homestead in Medfield, which has been in the family for nine generations. While in Waltham he was the schoolmate of Nathaniel P. Banks, who later was a general of federal troops in the civil war and still later was governor of the commonwealth. They were great chums and were always referred to as "Nat" and "Bill."

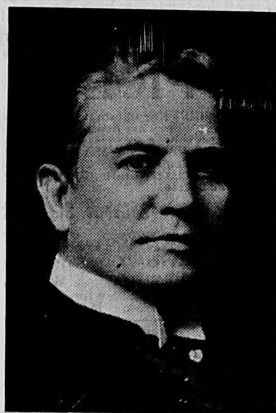

In 1843 he married Harriet Coggin at Mt. Vernon, N. H., and they had 10 children. His wife died in 1865. He married Abbie B. Kern of Mills in 1882, and they had two children, Horace and Lucy, who live in Medfield. Mr. Allen was the first farmer to peddle milk in Medfield and he bought and operated the first mowing machine having a yoke of oxen to haul it. With his father, Mr. Ellis Allen, and the late Jacob R. Cushman, he was active in the operation of the so-called "underground railroad" in slavery days.

He was a pioneer believer in the water cure. This cure was severely criticised at the time, but Mr. Allen often related how, when his boy Frank was stricken with smallpox, he cured him in a short time by giving him the water treatment, packing him in ice water sheets nine times a day and taking out all of the windows of the house to give him fresh air, and how he cured him by this treatment.

A brief funeral service was held at 9.30 Sunday morning at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Edward E. Fernald, 31 Newell road, Rev. Julian C. Jaynes of the First Unitarian church officiating. The body was then taken to Medfield, where there was a service at 2 P. M. in the Unitarian church, burial being made in Vine Lake cemetery in that town.

THE BIBLICAL DRAMA "ST. PAUL."

Professor S. J. MacWatters of Boston University will give the Biblical drama St. Paul at the Newton Methodist church Sunday evening, March 7. The drama has been arranged by the professor from Scriptural material alone and will be presented in a way to interest. Beginning with the dramatic picture of the stoning of Stephen, at which there stood by consenting the young man Saul, the narrative is followed closely as related in the New Testament. Incident after incident brings out the growing conviction and light in the heart of the tent maker of Tarsus until he stands forth as the great protagonist of the Gospel. Prof. MacWatters has made himself master of the subject and is in harmony with its deeper spiritual phases. The result is at once a sympathetic recital of the great story and a setting forth of the Pauline vision of Jesus that stirs and thrills all hearers. He does not allow the dramatic quality of the story to hide the pathos of the Cross or its appeal to human hearts.

REV. S. J. MACWATTERS

POLICE PARAGRAPHS

In the police court Monday John W. Brown, aged 20, colored, was held without bail for the higher court on the charge of murder by shooting Laura Bland and assault with intent to kill Emma Bland, her sister.

Brown was removed from the Newton hospital to the court room on a cot and waived examination while a crowd of spectators who filled the room looked on the unusual scene.

After the brief arraignment the prisoner was removed to the guard room in police headquarters. Here he reposed on his cot and smoked cigarettes until the ambulance arrived to convey him to East Cambridge. An x-ray examination of Brown made in the Newton hospital Sunday revealed that the bullet lodged over the third rib. The doctors were unable to remove it. The condition of Emma Bland, who remains in the hospital, is still serious, although there has been a slight improvement noted in the past few days.

Common sense always brings fancy prices.

NEWTON CLUB

The after dinner smoker held Saturday was well attended about one hundred representative men gathering to hear a debate between Col. Albert Clarke, secretary of the Home Market club and Mr. Charles H. Jones of Wellesley on the well worn subject of the tariff. In connection with the discussion, a friend has asked the publication of the following quotation for a recent number of the London Economist:—

"Turning to the reports of poor law inspectors, we find a diversity between different parts of a county and even between adjoining and similar counties. Thus two out of every fifty persons in the counties of Norfolk, Suffolk and Dorset are paupers, compared with half that rate in Lancashire and Middlesex, while London had 17.3 indoor paupers per thousand on January 1st, 1908, as against 6.2 in Middlesex, 5 in West Riding, and 2.6 in Cardigan.

Poor relief cost fourteen million pounds a year, three and one-half being spent in London. Of the latter sum one million goes in maintenance, only £293,000. In out relief, and £858,000. on salaries, which contrasts with not quite double that sum in the rest of England and Wales.

London poor rates come to 13s 3 1-4d per head as against 5s in the rest of the country. Since 1898 the population has increased 11 per cent., expenditure on indoor relief 35 per cent., and on outdoor relief 13 per cent., and at the same time there has been a steady increase in the number of indoor paupers and decrease in outdoor paupers, accompanied by more generous grants and stricter investigation."

A thin purse makes a person feel flat.

ST. RAILWAY NOTES

The street railway companies operating lines through this city have inaugurated an innovation which is attracting much interest among the officials and the patrons. Signs have been placed in all the cars to the effect that none but policemen will be allowed to ride in the rear vestibules, and that when more convenient passengers may leave by the forward doors. The officials of the roads believe that in keeping the vestibules clear passengers may enter or leave with less inconvenience.

With the incoming of March and the pending torrent of water bills, which next week, will flood the city, I am again compelled to call attention to the unnecessary high rate Newton consumers pay for water. Our charge of 35 cents per 1000 gallons is practically the highest in the state and compares most unfavorably with our next door neighbor, Brookline, where the rate is but 16 cents. The receipts for 1908 from water rates were $138, 316.86 and the total cost of maintenance and all items properly charged to current income was $121,119.14, leaving over $17,000 as profits for the year. Under these circumstances it seems proper to ask the city government for some reduction in the present rates for water.

VICE MAYOR

Editor of the Graphic:
Your editorial of last week prompts me to suggest a change I have had in mind for some time. To my way of thinking we should have a vice mayor to act in the absence, sickness or death of the chief magistrate of the City, to preside over the board of aldermen, and the most important thing of all is that he shall be elected by the voters of the City. Why should that not be as feasible as the election of the lieutenant governor of the State or the vice president of the United States? It is much the same situation only in a smaller way. The people should have the selection of the man in whose hands may come the reins of power, not the board of aldermen, and in the death or incapacity of the mayor he shall serve the remainder of the term. That august body, in a city like Newton, would no doubt select as good a man to preside over their meetings as would the voters, but the other method would seem to me a better one. In regard to the size of the aldermanic body I should favor an increase rather than a decrease of members, giving them more power and larger responsibility.
F. D. FRISBIE.

ORCHESTRAL CONCERT

The second orchestral concert under the direction of Mr. Arthur B.
Keene with Mr. J. Edgar Barnes as concert master was given at the Hunnewell club last Friday evening. The program, one of the best of its kind ever presented in Newton, consisted of selections from the compositions of Nessier, Rossini, Celega, Gabriel Mar-le, Strauss, Langley, Blon and Tobani.
Miss Edith B. Whitcomb was the assisting artist, her full contralto voice giving a fine rendering of "Je suis Ti-tania," from Mignon by Thomas and "Nymphs and Fauns," by Bemberg.
The concert was patronized, by 14 Newton ladies.

UNDER THE GILDED DOME

Some of the most interesting hearings of the session were held the latter part of last week. One, in particular, to charter the "Massachusetts College" brought out a new idea in education—that the college should be brought to the students, not the students sent to the college. The supporters of the desired legislation state that the higher learning now costs at least $1600 for a four years residence in a college community and is entirely too expensive for the large majority of the population. It is proposed to establish a college, in which the exercises will be held at widely distributed centres of population, where the students may continue to enjoy the benefits and moral restraints of home life and in some cases to work for a livelihood. It is expected that existing high school or normal school buildings can be utilized for afternoon and evening lectures, recitations and examinations.

The permanent staff will consist of professors, assistant professors, instructors and assistants, divided into several departments of the Faculty, each covering a certain geographical province of Massachusetts. Resident teachers and clerks at each Centre of Instruction will administer the routine business. The lecturers of the permanent staff will conduct exercises at several Centres of Instruction within range of travel from the departmental city. Other lecturers will be selected from the seventeen existing institutions of higher learning in the State.
The hearing developed the fact that Mr. Edmund D. Barbour who is chiefly interested in the movement has contributed $100,000 to the fund for the College and intends to give the project his full attention in the future.
With such a backer and with such a plan, there ought to be no question as to the success of the "Massachusetts College."

Another hearing which the desired legislation ever becomes law will be of interest to Newton, is the intention to turn over to the state a larger proportion of the fees for liquor licenses. Boston receives at present about $1,500,000 for its liquor fees and pays the state about $350,000. It will easily be seen that if the law is changed it should have an effect on the state tax, an item in which Newton has a large interest. Similar attempts in the past to obtain this legislation have failed and there is no reason to suppose that this year will see any considerable change of heart by the legislature. Another temperance measure is that to abolish the sixth class liquor licenses held by druggists. Mr. Fred A. Hubbard of Newton, an ex member of the State Board of Pharmacy spoke in favor of having that board grant druggists licenses instead of the local governments.

Ex senator James H. Vahey has won a notable victory in the favorable report of the Judiciary on his bill to allow juries to return verdicts in murder cases with the qualification "without capital punishment." The measure will be strongly opposed in both branches but I believe the average citizen does not favor capital punishment in this state except under extraordinary and atrocious circumstances, and the bill should become law.

The bill to amend the city charter of Newton to make the mayor a member of the school committee has been passed to be enacted in both branches and will probably become a law in a short time. The amendment does not take effect until next year.

At the hearing before the Committee on Labor to still further amend the labor laws affecting city employees, no one appeared for this city, altho the measure will add still further to the vexatious burdens of the present eight hour law. While I firmly believe in the eight hour law for practically all classes of labor, it should be enforced with a certain amount of common sense,—a matter in which the present law is entirely deficient.

The expected has happened in the matter of women's suffrage, notwithstanding the splendid demonstration of last week at the State House. The Committee on Constitutional Amendments, with but two dissenters has decided adversely to the petition to strike out the word "male" in the state constitution. The matter will be fought out on the floor of the House and an interesting debate is anticipated.

The bill to authorize the city of Newton to pay a sum of money to the widow of the late City Engineer Farnham, which was recalled from the Governor is again on the Senate endorse, and will be taken up after Governor Draper returns from Washington. I do not believe a hard and fast rule can be maintained against matters of this sort, and while there are many cases in which the political element enters, the Farnham bill is one which has an abundance of merit and should not be thrown out by a "rule of thumb."

NEWTON LEAGUE

One new team record for a single string was made Wednesday evening in the bowling matches in the Newton league, when Hersey of Mangus rolled 134. Mangus won three straight from Neighborhood, Allston Golf took three from Ilfordvale and North Gate shut out Hunnewell. The scores: Mangus—191, 491, 446—1428, Nelborhood—433, 434, 427—1294; Allston Golf—429, 491, 487—1407, Ilfordvale—420, 440, 458—1318; North Gate—449, 500, 500—1449; Hunnewell—467, 489, 468—1431.

CARD OF THANKS

The officers and men of the Clafin Guard, Co. C, 5th Regt. Inf., M. V. M., extend thanks to all who have contributed to the Washington trip fund, making it possible for the company to go with full ranks.

HIGH SCHOOL BASEBALL

Edward Laughlin, the old Harvard outfielder, has been re-engaged to coach the Newton high school baseball team this year. Last year it won the championship of the Preparatory league over Brookline high and Cambridge Latin schools, and with many promising aspirants on hand the prospects are bright for another strong team.

John Donahue has been re-elected captain and Edward T. Richardson manager, while Ward Wilkins is the assistant manager. Richardson has arranged a fine schedule, including games with Volkmann, Malden, Everett, English high and Waltham.

The team will play all its home games on Clafin field, Newtonville, this spring. Cedar-street grounds having been cut into house lots.

Tip O'Neil, the star outfielder of last year's team, is still in school, and Capt. Donahue hopes that Tip will be able to pass off his conditions and be a member of the team. Last year O'Neil was selected unanimously for left field on the all-inter-scholastic teams.

The fight for first base promises to be a good one with Morgan Chamberlain and Ryan seeking the position.
Ryan has played there two years, and Chamberlain showed up well in several of the league games last year.

Capt. "Buck" Donahue will be at second base, where he has played the past three seasons. He is one of the leading infielders in school baseball circles.

Gorham gives promise of being a fixture behind the bat. Beside Belding for the pitcher's box, Capt. Donahue has Clay and T. McCourt.

The veterans back in school are Capt. Donahue, Barry, Sanderson, Ryan, Chamberlain, Gallagher, Belding and Edward McCourt. Belding was not a member of the first team, but acted as a substitute pitcher. Barry at third base, Sanderson at shortstop, Gallagher and Edward McCourt in the outfield, will be valuable players. The schedule:

April 9—Needham high at Newton-ville.

On Saturday evening the Fourth Annual Gymnastic Exhibition will be held in the gymnasium. The chief work of the exhibition is to show the work that the classes have done during the year. In addition, there will be several features of entertainment. Perhaps the chief novelty will be the entrance of the "Unknown Clown." Four of the senior members will dance the "Sallor's Hornpipe."

Mr. Archibald Forder will give a stereopticon lecture at 7.30 on Monday evening, telling of his trip through the Arabian Desert. This lecture is for men only. Non-members as well as our own members are cordially invited.

The Conference Echoes will be the attractive feature at the Sunday afternoon meeting. Each one of the delegates will tell of his trip to Providence.

Great interest is being shown in the Senior Billiard Tournament. Perhaps the most interesting game played so far was the one between Dr. Moore and Mr. Norris, in which Mr. Norris, after conceding Dr. Moore a 30 point handicap, was defeated by one point.

The Walt Trophy Meet will be held March 13th. The members are taking great interest in this meet, and it bids fair to be one of the most interesting events of the season.

The Annual State Meet will be held in the Newton gymnasium March 18th.
At this meet athletes from all the associations in Massachusetts and Rhode Island will compete. One of the chief features will be an exhibition race between Itoy Welton, the Olympic Marathon Runner, and a relay of three men. Mr. Welton is training two nights each week at the association.

Women's Clubs.

The Newton Equal Suffrage League will meet with Mrs. George F. Lowell, 625 Walnut street, Newtonville, March 11, at 8 P. M. Subject for discussion, "Why Women Need to Vote."

At the last board meeting of the Newton Centre Woman's Club, it was voted to send in the following petition: We, the undersigned, members of the Newton Centre Woman's Club, do hereby petition the General Court for such legislation as shall promote and maintain kindergartens in the cities and large towns of the Commonwealth, as provided in the Kindergarten Law, introduced into the Massachusetts Legislature of 1909.

SONG RECITAL

Monday evening at the Mount Ida school a recital of vocal music was given by Mr. Howard Wilder Lyman who has recently taken charge of the vocal department. It was his first public introduction to our citizens and in a well selected and varied program he gave his audience much gratification. His voice is a flexible and sympathetic tenor, having—what so many tenors lack—firmness of tone. In a taxing program which ranged from the tender love-song of McDowell and Tos-ti to the heroic in Sigmund's he showed imagination and artistic sensitivity. In admirable contrast to these songs he gave a fine rendering of "In native worth" from the Creation. The final number—Foot's "O Swallow"—was given with dash and great effectiveness and was deservedly encored. The pianoforte accompaniments to the songs were artistically played by Mr. Louis C. Stanton. The spirit and sympathy of the accompaniments with their careful subordination to the voice, added much to the effect of the evening's program.

The Glee Club made its first public appearance—its maiden effort, so to speak—and contributed thereby to the pleasure of the audience. Miss Tot-man's accompaniment ably seconded Mr. Lyman's conducting. The club should feel greatly pleased at its success.

LODGES

The regular monthly meeting of Palestine Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star last Tuesday evening at Temple hall, Newtonville was followed by an informal entertainment under the direction of a committee of which Mr. J.
Frank Dunleavy was chairman. The program included some excellent instrumental music by Messrs. Joy and Fisher, piano and violin, some good stories by Mr. Joy, tenor solos by Mr.
Blatchford, piano solos by Miss Cilka, and a Japanese song in costume by Miss Williams, which was easily the best number. Later in the evening as an intermission between dances, Mr.
A. Sidney Bryant gave a capital song and Miss Pierce of Ashmont sang most charmingly.

It doesn't pay to bully-rag a bull.

One of the most attractive of the smaller hall ornaments is a lantern for the overhead light. Made of brass, such lanterns are especially pretty, always appropriate, and adapted to gas, electricity or oil.

And brass working is one of the most satisfactory of home relaxations, since it can be dropped instantly and started again at the same point, without fear of "dropped" stitches or tangled threads.

We have all the necessary tools and materials, as well as working patterns, which we will gladly show you.

Women's Clubs.

Edited by Miss Grace M. Burt.

While the nation is inaugurating its President, the clubs are beginning to cast about for officers for the coming year. Nominating committees are already at work. This fact suggests that the club year is coming to a close. Many clubs can now count their remaining meetings upon the fingers of one hand. Returning to the subject of nominating committees, the importance of their work cannot be overestimated, since in most cases their results are equivalent to an election. There must be much good material in the clubs that only awaits development. Such material should be sought out and brought to the front, not only for the good of the individual, but for the good of the club as well. The present president of one of the large clubs in Greater Boston stated recently, that six years ago she was not even a member of a woman's club nor ever expected to be, much less being president of one. To all appearances she is today carrying on the affairs of her organization with ability. Rotation in office is a principle which should be introduced into most organizations and for most of the offices. In this way the club is more easily kept from getting into ruts, a larger number of individuals are developed and the interest is spread over a greater number of members. Whether the nomination should be equivalent to an election is a debatable question. The Australian ballot adopted by the State is intended to give freedom of choice. Attempts have been made by clubs to adopt this method but with varying degrees of success. It has usually been sufficiently difficult for nominating committees to secure one set of names to say nothing of finding more than one candidate for an office. Yet is the present method as democratic as it should be, is a question which the Club Editor would like to leave with her readers.

The Education Committee of the Massachusetts State Federation will hold a Conference on Education at Fitchburg, on Saturday, March 13, at 1.45 P. M. Addresses on Moral Training by Superintendent A. D. Poland, Newark, N. J., and on Industrial Training by Superintendent Joseph G. Ederly of Fitchburg.

At the meeting of the Newton Highlands Monday Club on March first a paper was given on "Sir Joshua Reynolds." There were also readings from Oliver Goldsmith and comments on the men of letters of the period which the club is studying. The meeting next week will be with Mrs. Kerr of Lake avenue.

The State Federation will hold a Conference of Club Presidents at Reading on Monday, March 22, at 10.15 A. M. Recording and corresponding secretaries are also invited to attend. Luncheon tickets at fifty cents may be obtained in the usual manner by sending to Mrs. Mabel L. Nutter, 80 Washington street, Reading, before Friday, March 19. No tickets will be sold on the day of the meeting. Train leaves Boston at 9.25. Special round trip ticket good to go on this train and return on any train, 38 cents. Electric cars for Reading every fifteen minutes from Sullivan Square.

The Newton Ladies' Home Circle will meet at the Pomroy Home, Newton, Tuesday, March 9th, at 2.30 P. M. The meeting will take the form of a donation party.

The Social Science Club will have a paper on "Chinese Pottery" at its meeting on March 10.

The Current Events Class of the Newtonville Woman's Guild will meet on Thursday, March 11.

The Newton Mothers' Club held its annual meeting on March first. The following officers were elected for next year: President, Mrs. E. K. Hall; vice-president, Mrs. J. J. Mitchell; secretary, Mrs. Joseph N. Lovell; treasurer, Mrs. S. Harold Greene; chairman of program committee, Mrs. F. E. Spaulding. These officers do not assume office until next fall. The program of the afternoon was "The Story of Roland," presented by Mrs. Cook and Mrs. Lovell. The usual social hour followed.

Dean Henry Lawrence Southwick of the Emerson College of Oratory read "The Rivals" before the Newtonville Woman's Guild on March 2. All who heard him felt that they had enjoyed a rich treat.

The Social Science Club held its monthly business meeting at the Hunnewell Club on Wednesday morning. The usual reports of officers and chairmen of committees were submitted. The club has decided to adopt for next season the plan begun this year of devoting a portion of its meetings to the consideration of some connected subject. Mrs. F. H. Tucker reported the recent annual meeting of the Consumers' League and Mrs. F. B. Hornbroke spoke of some discouraging things regarding the status of the bird question at the present time.

The West Newton Educational Club had a delightful afternoon on Feb. 26th, when they had the pleasure of hearing Miss Bessie Bell Collier, violinist, Miss Grace Collier, accompanist and Miss Evelyn Blair, soprano. The music was in charge of Mrs. Everett K. Jones. The tea room was managed by Mrs. Lamson and was very prettily decorated.

THEATRES

Boston Theatre—"Way Down East," under the management of William A.
Brady, with a newly painted and augmented production, returned to the Boston Theatre last Monday night for a two weeks' stay, and was warmly greeted by a house that was packed almost to capacity. This popular New England play has been absent from Boston for several seasons, so its revival on Monday was thoroughly appreciated by the mass of theatregoers who seldom attend the theatre. Manager Brady has been wise enough to retain almost the entire cast of players last seen here in their respective roles, and the few new comers to the company, acquitted themselves admirably. The Village Choir, composed of a mixed quartet of excellent voices, rendered the old songs in the old manner, and added several new selections for encores. Jane Millard, the alto of this quartet, has been with the company for a number of years. The others are newer acquisitions, but fully competent. The engagement of "Way Down East" is limited to the coming week, with matinees on Wednesday and Saturday. There are 800 good seats on the lower floor at $1.00 for every performance.

Keith's Theatre—Still another legitimate star will keep up the proce-sion that is passing through Keith's Theatre this season, and it is no other than Nell Burgess in a condensed version of the play which his name has been identified for many years—
"The County Fair." Another feature of unusual interest on this bill will be William Jerome and Jean Schwartz, the famous song writers. Claire Romaine, "London's Pet Boy," who was one of the hits of last week's bill, has been held over and will introduce some new specialties. The great sen-attractions.

Orpheum Theatre—Boston has seen many Scotch Comedians during the past seasons and has shown its appreciation of their merits by the receptions that have invariably been tendered them, but next week the opportunity will be given of seeing the greatest of them all at the Orpheum Theatre. Jack Lorimer, who has long since won a place in the hearts of the American people. Mr. Lorimer has a repertoire of Scotch songs and sayings that is in a class by itself. He holds the stage for a long period at each performance and has the audience with him every minute of the time.
In the bill is Alexander Carr & Co. in "Tobitsky the end of the world." Another act that will furnish much of the comedy of the bill will be Finley & Burk, travestys. George C. Davis, the lie during the week. Bosenquest, known as "The Human Violin," will make his American appearance. Every other act on the bill will be up to the high Orpheum standard.

ELIOT VESPERS

The main auditorium of Eliot church was filled again last Sunday afternoon when the quartet and chorus, assisted by Mr. Stephen Townsend, gave a fine rendering of Theo. Dubois' "The Seven Last Words of Christ." It is an impressive composition and was impressively rendered, many portions giving the quartet as well as the chorus an excellent opportunity for artistic work. Mr. Everett E. Truette presided at the organ and conducted the chorus in his usual able manner.

KATHAIDIN CLUB

The annual banquet of the Kathaidin Club was held at the Newton Club last Tuesday evening. There was a good attendance of members and friends and an informal reception was held in the parlors from 6.30 to 7 when dinner was served in the banquet hall. The tables were prettily decorated with potted plants and pine branches, representing the Pine Tree State, and during the evening an attractive musical program was presented by an orchestra under the direction of Miss Gertrude M. Bourne and readings were given by Miss Edith Barnes Arvey of Dorchester. President George Agry, Jr., presided as toastmaster and after a few preliminary remarks introduced Representative William F. Garcelon as the first speaker. He spoke of the Charms of the Maine Women, the pure and invigorating air of that state and of some of the taverns and landlords.
From an old Maine register of 1843 he gave interesting figures of the population of the state at that time and showed how the cities and towns had grown since then. He stated that the high ideals of its men and women were shown in business, the professions and in politics, in the making of good laws and illustrated as examples the late James G. Blaine, Thomas B. Reed and Nelson Dingley.
Mr. Henry W. Dunne was the next speaker and created much amusement by stating that there were many good things to eat in Maine. After several good stories he went on, in a serious vein, to describe the prohibition law, a great moral issue in which Maine stands in the forefront, of the large lumber and fish interests and of the strong, moral fibre and rugged simplicity of its people. The last speaker was Representative William F. O'Brien who gave some impressions of the life and character of the late James G. Blaine. Mr. O'Brien was connected with the Blaine-Cleveland campaign of 1884 and was located in August, Maine. He related in a most impressive way, the details of the National Republican Conventions of that year, giving side lights on Mr. Blaine's character and life during the contest, the way he took his defeat and some incidents during the years which directly followed. He stated in closing that this Maine statesman had a wonderful memory for faces, names, and events and that, notwithstanding he had a large following, his defeat was largely due to misrepresentation and the lack of loyalty among his friends.
At the head table with President and Mrs. George Agry were Mr. and Mrs.
F. E. Stanley, Hon. and Mrs. A. R.
Weed, Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Nash, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. O'Brien, Mr. W. F.
Garcelon, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Dunne, guests present were: Mr. and Mrs. F.

SOLDIERS' HOME RECEIVES LEGACY

The residue of the estate of John Ashton, amounting to $22,000, was awarded to the soldiers' home in Chelsea Wednesday by a decision of Judge Charles J. McIntire of the Middlesex probate court at East Cambridge. The decision was given as a result of a petition made by Edward H. Mason, the sole surviving trustee of the estate, to have the court determine the meaning of the seventh clause of the will.

The clause, which was a matter of much speculation, provided that after the death of two children the residue of the estate should be given to "the Massachusetts hospital for diseased and wounded soldiers." Claims for the money were put in by the soldiers' home in Chelsea, through Secretary William M. Olin; the Massachusetts homeopathic hospital, the Massachusetts English cottage hospital, the Massachusetts state sanitarium, the Massachusetts hospital for epileptics and the Foxboro institution.

The will was dated December 17, 1863. It was allowed August 13, 1867. The petition for instruction was dated September 23, 1908.

In his decision Judge McIntire calls attention to the fact that it appears that at no times has there been an institution having such a name as that designated in the will. When the will was executed the Massachusetts general hospital, the Massachusetts state sanitarium, the Massachusetts hospital for epileptics and the Foxboro institution, were in existence. He says the provision in the will is a public charity and should not be permitted to fall because of any uncertainty regarding the particular institution which the testator attempted to indicate.

"A number of institutions expressed willingness to undertake the management of the fund," stated the court, "but among them all there is only one prepared to receive, treat, nurse and care for soldiers whose condition is incurable; which furnishes a retreat as well as a hospital for inmates and keeps and expects to care for them until their death—the soldiers' home in Chelsea."

"I feel that the desire and attempt of the testator will be better carried out by giving the fund to this institution rather than to any other."

SAFETY OF ROADS

It would assist the cause of "safety on our roads" if attention is called to Section 1 of Chapter 512, Acts of 1908, recently passed by the Legislature and entitled an act relative to the law of the road as follows:

Section 1. Whenever on any bridge or way, public or private, there is not an unobstructed view of the road for at least one hundred yards, the driver of every vehicle shall keep his vehicle on the right of the middle of the travel, as provided in the bridge or way, whenever it is safe and practicable so to do. (Section 2 provides a penalty.)

It is evident from investigation of many accidents on the road that a large number of them are caused by failure to observe the safe and sensible rule which, by this statute, is made law of the Commonwealth, applying to the vast majority of situations, namely, "Keep on your own right hand side of the road."

Even in passing on the left of another vehicle going in the same direction, as provided in Chapter 54 of the Revised Laws, a driver should have a clear road before leaving the right hand side.

By observing this law at all times, drivers of carriages and automobiles will not only save themselves from possible prosecution in the Courts, but will greatly add to their own safety and to the safety of other users of our roads.

AUBURNDALE STUDIO.

It will be of interest to residents of Newton to know that Mrs. May Sleep Ruggles, the contralto soloist and teacher of voice, Boston, with studio 602 Pierce building, Copley square, will receive pupils at her residence, 23 Hancock street, Auburndale. The Annual Gymnastic Exhibition had many new features this year which gives it a unique place in the annals of the Physical Department. It was a pleasure to see the young men taking part in such large numbers as well as the boys as in former years. Physical Director Macpherson, and his leaders and all who took part are to be congratulated on the fine program.

On Monday about 75 gathered to hear Archibald Forder give his illustrated lecture on "My Desert Journey to Jowt." The lecture was interesting and the pictures good.

The donor certainly accomplished his purpose as great interest is taken in the meet.

The Athletic Event of the season will be the State Meet of the associations of Massachusetts and Rhode Island which will be held in the Newton Gymnasium March 18. A special feature of this meet will be a ten-mile race between A. Roy Welton and three picked men. A handsome cup will be given to the association winning the most points.

The club is in fine condition financially, both the treasurer and the house committee reporting substantial balances on hand. It is proposed to employ more help than hitherto on the upkeep of the grounds, with a view to maintaining them in first class playing condition. Some necessary alterations to the course have resulted in adding some 95 yards to its total length. TUBERCULOSIS

Important Information Published by the Health Board

The Board of Health will issue a pamphlet next week on Tuberculosis and of which the following is a copy:

Within the past half century we have learned the true causes of many diseases to which the human race is subject and with this knowledge of the cause has come a knowledge of how to prevent persons from being attacked by some of them. In former times these diseases appeared in what were called epidemics and swept through the community causing an immense amount of suffering and death. People are now coming to understand that it is easier and better to try to prevent a disease of this description from gaining a foothold, than it is to try to cure it after it has developed.

One of the most important of these so called preventable diseases is tuberculosis, and it owes its importance to the fact that it is so widespread, and is responsible for such an enormous number of deaths.

Nearly one-third of all the deaths that occur during the "working period" of life, say from 18 to 45 years of age, is due to tuberculosis, and it is this fact, namely, that its victims are chosen from this period of life, that make it so important a work to try to check it.

Tuberculosis is caused by a small living organism or germ, which is known as the tubercle bacillus, or the bacillus of tuberculosis. In more technical books on this subject it is often referred to as B. tuberculosis.

This may attack any part of the body, and in those cases where it does not directly kill its victim, may cause marked deformities. Thus the hunchback, with his unsightly hump and weakened health, owes it all to the fact that this little germ has attacked the bones of the spine causing them to decay. Again when you see a man limping along the street with one leg shorter than the other, you know that he has had hip disease, or tuberculosis of the hip; or when you see a young girl with unsightly scars on her neck, you know that she has had so-called scrofulous glands, and "scrofula" is only another name for tuberculosis.

When the bacillus of tuberculosis attacks the lungs it causes the disease known as consumption. This is perhaps the most common manifestation of the disease and you all are familiar with it.

When the bacillus attacks the lungs certain changes take place in them due to its presence there. Roughly speaking the lungs are made up of innumerable little sacs into which the air is drawn at each breath, but after the bacillus has gained a foothold some of these little air sacs become solid and the air can no longer enter. Later these hard places soften and break down forming what is known as a cavity. There is almost always a cough and the patient spits up the broken down material. As the softening continues it sometimes happens that a small blood vessel is injured and a hemorrhage takes place.

Besides these changes in the lungs themselves the bacilli produce a poison which causes the patient to have fever, sweating and to lose flesh. The disease goes on from bad to worse and finally after months, or sometimes years, of suffering and misery the patient dies, provided nothing has been done to help him.

Tuberculosis is what is known as a preventable disease; that is, people can be prevented from catching it if they take proper precautions, and we are at present engaged in strenuous efforts to lessen the number of its victims by teaching people how to avoid catching it.

It is of great importance that a person who has caught the disease should know that he has it, at the earliest possible moment, both for his own sake and for the sake of others. The best hope for the recovery of the patient lies in proper treatment in the early stages of the disease.

In former times people were afraid to acknowledge that they had consumption or belonged to a consumptive family, for it was thought that consumption was hereditary, that is, that it was handed down from parents to children, and the members of such a family were looked upon as doomed to have consumption and hand it down to their children. We know that this is not so, and that consumption is no more hereditary than small pox or scarlet fever.

At the present time many people fear to have known that they have consumption because they are shunned by their fellows. This shunning of a person with consumption is not only unnecessary but absolutely cruel, and adds an extra burden to one who has enough to bear in his illness alone.

It should be understood that the careful consumptive, the one who faithfully carries out the necessary precautions, is practically harmless to others, and there is no necessity to shun him or to place him in quarantine.

In the first place consumption can only be spread by the germ of the disease getting lodging in the lungs of the victim, and to do this it must get in from the outside.

The germ can only grow in the bodies of some men or animals which has the disease. Persons with consumption have a cough which is more or less severe, and when they cough they bring up large quantities of phlegm, or sputum. This sputum is loaded with millions of these little bacilli.

It is from the bacilli with which this sputum is loaded that other persons catch the disease. Of course the bacilli cannot go about by themselves and infect a person, but after the sputum has been spit out and dried they are set free and may be breathed into another person's lungs. Or some of the moist sputum may in some way adhere to some article used later by another person and in that way the germs are taken into his system.

Again when a person with consumption coughs or sneezes he throws off from his mouth or nose a fine moist spray which is loaded with bacilli, and floats around in the air for a long time. In ordinary quiet breathing there is very little danger from a consumptive.

From what has been said it is evident that the consumptive should be very careful about coughing and spitting.

He should always have at hand small squares of cotton cloth or linen, which he should hold in front of his face when he coughs or sneezes. As soon as one of these has been used for this purpose it should be burned. If for any reason it is impossible to burn them at once, they may be put into a paper bag and burned at the first opportunity. Even better than the cloths are the so-called Japanese napkins, squares of paper which are comparatively cheap. These should be burned after use.

If by any reason the sneeze or cough comes so suddenly that it is impossible to use one of the napkins or cloths, the consumptive should place his hand before his face to prevent the spray from reaching others, and turn his head away from other people. When the hand is thus used as a guard it should be immediately and thoroughly washed with soap and hot water.

A consumptive should always be very careful never to sneeze or cough towards another person. He should always turn his head away.

As it has been shown that the phlegm or sputum of a consumptive is loaded with bacilli, the greatest care should be taken in regard to the disposal of it.

A consumptive should never spit on the floor of any building or vehicle nor in the street.

Neither should he use a spittoon, for it becomes very quickly covered on sides and elsewhere with sputum, and must be cleaned by some one. Besides this, the spit may fall to strike the spittoon and get on the floor.

When in the house, a consumptive should always use some form of spitcup. This may be a simple china mug with a large opening and with about half an inch of some disinfectant solution in the bottom. Carbolic acid and water is very good for this.

This cup should be emptied into the water closet daily or oftener, and washed in boiling water. Even better than a china mug are water proof paper cups which are comparatively cheap and may be burned with their contents when full.

When the consumptive goes out of the house he should be equally careful about spitting. He cannot of course take a cup with him, but he can, and always should carry a supply of paper napkins in one pocket and a clean paper bag in another.

Whenever it becomes necessary to spit he must use one of the napkins, and then after folding it carefully with the sputum inside put the folded napkin in his paper bag.

When he returns to the house the bag and its contents must be burned. In order that a consumptive may not be a source of danger to those around him he must be careful about other things besides spitting.

Even the most careful person is liable to get moisture on his lips, and from here to his hands and thence to other articles. To lessen this danger a man who is a consumptive should always be clean shaven.

The articles which a consumptive uses, such as forks, spoons, glasses, should be very carefully scalded in boiling water before they are used by another person. If possible it is better for the consumptive to have his own articles of this sort, which are for his own use entirely. A consumptive should never kiss a well person, especially a child.

A person with consumption should always sleep in a separate room if possible; if it is not possible he should have a separate bed, and bedding.

The pillows used by a consumptive are especially liable to become infected and should never be used by a well person. The bedclothes, and especially the pillow cases should ever be used by another person until they have been washed in boiling water.

Sunlight and fresh air are very valuable germicides, and whenever possible the consumptive should have a bright sunny, airy bed room.

The human body is so constructed that it has the power to resist infection.

If every one who breathed the tubercle bacilli into his lungs, caught the disease, none of us would escape. It is the resisting power of the human body which enables us at times to breathe the bacilli without danger, and in general, the better the physical condition in which a person is, the greater is his power to resist disease.

There are two conditions requisite for catching a disease—first, we have the specific germ of the disease, and second, the proper condition of the body for the germ to grow after it has gained a foothold. Fortunately the germ of tuberculosis is not one of the very powerful ones and by keeping the body in a healthy condition we are better able to resist its attacks.

It is therefore of the greatest importance to take every means possible to keep ourselves in a healthy condition and there are a few simple things to be done which will help us in this work.

The main things necessary are proper food, fresh air, sunlight, exercise, plenty of sleep and the avoidance of anything that will tend to weaken the body.

Take plenty of exercise in the open air. Let your food be plentiful, nourishing and well prepared, and eaten at regular hours. Do not eat candy or sweets between meals, and take particular pains to chew the food carefully before it is swallowed.

One should be very careful not to sit in dark, badly ventilated rooms; a badly ventilated, stuffy room is worse than one which is cold.

Never sleep in a room that has the windows tightly closed. Always have your window open even in winter. One will not catch cold at night, no matter how cold the room may be, provided the body is properly covered.

plenty of bedclothes over you, and under you, if necessary, and leave your head out to breathe the fresh air. In this way you can get a good supply of fresh air during the hours that you sleep. Besides having plenty of fresh air to breathe it is important to breathe properly, learn to take deep breaths and fill your lungs properly; see that there are no obstructions in your air passages; breathe through your nose rather than your mouth, and if you find it difficult to breathe without opening your mouth you may be sure there is some obstruction which should be removed. If you consult your doctor he will tell you what is necessary.

One frequent cause of obstruction of the nasal passages is the presence of adenoids. These can be easily removed by a very simple operation and the improvement in general health is marvellous.

Finally, do not neglect a cold, but take measures to stop it at once. So much for the precautions to be taken to keep the body healthy, but there is one other thing which is of importance, and that is don't worry. Don't fret over the danger of taking consumption or any other disease. Try to live a clean, healthy life and remember that the things which you do to make yourself a strong, vigorous human being, and which help you to enjoy life, are the very things which will help you to escape tuberculosis.

Until recently it was believed that a person with tuberculosis, and especially with consumption was doomed to die, and there was no hope for them, but now we know that this is not the case; that a person with consumption, if taken early enough, and properly treated can be cured. The patient must thoroughly understand the importance of the task, and that its success depends as much upon his own efforts, as upon those of his doctor.

In spite of all this, the cure for consumption is marvellously simple: it consists of just four things: plenty of fresh air, plenty of good food, plenty of rest, and last but by no means least, an intelligent doctor to direct the patient's efforts and tell him what he must do. Simple as the cure of consumption is, it requires, while it is being carried out, infinite care and attention to details.

The first thing is plenty of fresh air. The consumptive must live out of doors in the open air as much as possible. He must make arrangements for sitting in the open air almost all day no matter how cold the weather may be. He must have plenty of warm clothing to keep his body warm, and if it is very cold, he may have hot water bottles or hot bricks under his wraps to keep him from feeling cold. Of course some protection must be provided against wind and rain and snow. The consumptive should sleep out of doors also. If there is a balcony which can be roofed with canvas, no better place for sleeping can be found. If there is no balcony to use, then there should be plenty of fresh air let into the sleeping room. The best way to accomplish this is to remove the window sash. Of course the body must be covered with plenty of bed clothes when the weather is cold. This part of the treatment may be summed up in a few words: live in the open air, and do not be afraid of cold weather. In the places where consumptives are treated you can see the patients sitting comfortably out of doors, with snow piled many feet high around them.

We come now to the question of food. The food of a consumptive should be plentiful, nourishing and well prepared. He should eat three good meals a day, and besides these he should drink plenty of good milk and also eat several eggs during the day. A raw egg beaten up in a glass of milk three or four times a day is very good.

The consumptive should not take much exercise, in fact, as long as the fever persists he should not take any except what is absolutely necessary, he must sit still and devote himself to his cure.

When the fever has gone he may take short walks on level ground, and as he grows stronger the amount of exercise may be increased.

Lastly, every consumptive should be under the care of an intelligent doctor who will watch his case carefully and tell him exactly what he must do. This is fully as important as the other three things, for the consumptive cannot properly direct his own case.

Do not take any medicine except what your doctor tells you to take, and obey his orders implicitly. There is no medicine that will cure consumption, in spite of the fact that many are advertised as cures for consumption. Most of these contain alcohol and morphine, neither of which drugs should ever be taken by a consumptive unless his doctor orders them.

Many persons with consumption believe that whiskey will help them. This is a mistake; it will make them feel better for a time but the final result will be that they are made weaker.

If your doctor orders whiskey or any other form of alcohol, you may of course take it for he knows what he is doing, but no consumptive should ever take alcohol just because he has consumption.

To sum up what has already been said—consumption is a disease caused by the tubercle bacillus, which is found only in persons or animals who have the disease. Most cases are caused by the spit of persons who have the disease and are careless about coughing and spitting, so that a careless consumptive is dangerous to well persons.

Healthy persons have a power of resisting the attacks of the tubercle bacillus, and this power of resistance is strongest in healthiest persons. It is well therefore to keep strong and healthy. To do this a person should eat good food, take plenty of exercise, sleep and fresh air, and avoid anything which may weaken him.

A person with consumption has a fair hope of being cured, especially if he is in the earlier stages of the disease. The cure is found, not by taking drugs, but by fresh air, good food, rest and a good doctor, who will tell his patient what he must do, and whose directions must be implicitly obeyed.

Finally, the cure is slow, do not expect to be made well in a few weeks; have patience, keep up your courage, and in time all will be well with you.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

Monday the Newton High School hockey team held its annual election for the coming year. The ballot for captain was very close, Stephen Hopkins of Newtonville being elected by a vote of six to four over Louis Washburn. Hopkins succeeds Capt. Slocum whose team won the championship of the Preparatory League for 1909.

Wednesday Rev. Mr. Stocking of Newtonville spoke to the pupils of the Newton High School in the Assembly hall, on the four essentials of success, namely:— ability, responsibility, personality, and individuality. His talk was short and to the point, and was much appreciated by the pupils.

Friday the battery candidates for the High school base ball team, 30 in number, reported to Capt. John Donahue in the drill hall. The principal candidates for catcher are Ryan, Beatty, of last year's team together with Barrows, Hartford, Mylie, Hazen, and Brooks. The pitchers who reported were Helling, who has pitched for some of the fast teams in and around Boston, and McCourt of last year's team also. Gary, Woods, Riley, Tucker, Wilson and Kite. It is expected that Dunne the former Dummerit school star will be a candidate for third base when the team goes out doors.

In the Newton high school hall, this evening, The Amherst College Dramatic Association will present the play, "As You Like It." The proceeds will be for the school library.

The interesting matters at the State House are coming thick and fast at present before the committees, altho the business actually transacted is mostly routine.

Last week Thursday, the Taxation committee heard arguments in favor of taking all the corporation tax by the state, instead of diverting half to the place where the corporation is located and half to the places where the stockholders reside. The present law will deprive Newton of at least $70,000 income and the proposed bills would double that amount. The advocates for this legislation roundly condemn the opposition of Newton and Brookline to these measures as "selfish" and I presume they plume themselves on their disinterestedness. This legislation in a remarkable degree resembles that which would turn all liquor license fees into the state treasury instead of the one quarter which is now received. Newton would largely benefit by such legislation, but to my knowledge no resident, and certainly, no one entitled to represent the city, has ever favored the bills. Yet when we are mulcted to the tune of $70,000 and possibly $140,000, a serious matter indeed to our taxpayers, we are entitled for our opposition. Another phase of the subject was touched upon by Mr. Slocum when he advocated the passage of bills, to either postpone the operation of the new law relating to distribution of the corporation tax until next year, or to readjust the basis upon which the present state tax is fixed. As the law stands today, Newton will be assessed a state tax on a basis which will include the whole valuation of the corporation tax, while another law deprives us of one half the tax from that valuation. It is so manifestly unjust that it is openly acknowledged by advocates of the present law, and yet, I believe that no action will be taken to remedy the situation.

Another matter of possible interest to Newton is the proposition to establish a state commission to pass upon the issuance of loans by cities. The advocates of this measure assert that many cities are unable to keep within the present legislative limit of $1200, and have issued bonds for matters which should have been paid for from current taxes. The bill abolishes the debt limit and requires all municipalities to receive the permission of a state commission before issuing loans for any purpose. Mr. Harvey S. Chase of Newtonville was a speaker in favor of the bill. One feature which seemed reasonable was the reference to the fact that public service corporations, such as railroads, gas and electric light companies, are required to obtain state approval for all issuances of stocks and bonds, and it was fair to include cities in the same class with such corporations. The bill was strongly opposed by the

of interest in the laying out of streets and construction of concrete sidewalks under the laws authorizing the assessment of betterments. At times the city government is extremely lenient in these matters and the experience is it is curious to note the rise and fall invariably followed by a most rigid refusal to grant similar petitions. Last year six streets and many sidewalks were laid out under the betterment act and the success of the petitioners has led to the presentation of a number of others to the city government.
It is hard to draw a fixed rule in these cases, as many have considerable merit, but I believe it is for the best interests of the city to refuse to take action on matters of this kind until those interested have deposited in the city treasury, a sufficient sum to save the city harmless from the ensuing cost.

Considerable opposition is being made to the erection of a laundry building on Washington street, Newton Lower Falls, altho the proprietor is willing to comply with about every reasonable restriction which has been suggested. From a disinterested viewpoint, it would seem as if such a business would be a benefit to the city, instead of a detriment, and that the policy of the city should be to encourage and not discourage enterprise.

I do not believe the members of the board of aldermen intended any reflection on our efficient board of health in passing the order Monday evening for a select committee to investigate the matter of collection and disposition of garbage, and yet it would have been far better to have asked that board to report on this matter before undertaking an independent investigation.

If the Congress of these United States wants to hear a universal howl of disgust, let them put the talked of duty of four cents a pound on coffee.
The Republican party will be licked out of its boots if it increases the price of coffee to consumers, ever so little.

Nonantum square should change its name to "Billboard square," since it has become walled in with enormous billboards.

Women's Clubs.

Edited by Miss Grace M. Burt.

"Reciprocity Day" is more and more becoming a feature among the clubs.
The term, however, has seemed to convey very little to the mind of the average member, for the announcement of such a meeting has failed sometimes to attract any considerable audience. Perhaps "reciprocity" has sounded dry. Yet as such meetings are generally carried out they prove most interesting. The exchange of experience is always helpful and the personality to the one bringing the word lends interest to the organization spoken of and a closer bond of fellowship is thereby attained. In planning such meetings there is, however, one danger to be avoided, that of hearing from too many clubs at one time. Three or four ten or fifteen-minute reports is a much happier arrangement, than ten or a dozen three-minute ones. If a club has done something or is doing a work of sufficient interest to deserve a place on such a program, it is impossible to give any adequate idea of it in so short a time.
Then, too, it is asking a good deal of a busy president to spend a whole afternoon, with perhaps a long trolley ride as well, just to say her say in three minutes. On the other hand the one giving the report should be careful not to weary her hearers with too many details, a few striking facts will remain with the audience long after all the numerous details have been forgotten. The thought of President Mary E. Woolley, it would be well for other presidents to heed when giving such reports, "I prefer to stop when my audience wants me to go on, than to keep on until they all wish I would stop."

The club officers are reminded of the Conference of Club Presidents and Secretaries to be held at Reading on March 22. Luncheon tickets must be secured before March 19 by sending fifty cents and stamped, addressed envelope to Mrs. Mabel L. Nutter, 80 Washington street, Reading.

The regular quarterly meeting of the executive board of the Newton Federation of Women's Clubs will be held in the New Church parlors, Newtonville, on Monday, March 15, at 10.15 A. M.

The Auburndale Review Club met Tuesday, March 9, at the home of Mrs.
R. L. Bridgman. In continuation of the study of South America papers were read on the Commercial Geography, Transportation, Catholicism and Protestant Missions. The club will meet on March 23 at the home of Mrs. Charles Pickard.

met with Mrs. G. F. Lowell of Newton-ville on Thursday evening. Mrs. Lowell spoke of "Why Women Need to Vote." Mrs. Harriet A. Eager told of the suffrage demonstration at the State House on the day of the hearing on the constitutional amendment and of other matters relative to legislative affairs. Questions were sent in from the floor and answered by both Mrs. Lowell and Mrs. Eager. Refreshments were served at the close and a brief social hour enjoyed.

The Newtonville Woman's Guild will meet on Tuesday afternoon, March 16.
Important changes in the constitution will be acted upon at this time.

At the meeting of the Social Science Club on March 17 Mr. E. T. Hartman, secretary of the Massachusetts Civic League, will speak upon "The Billboard Nuisance and Civic Improvement." Guests may be invited.

On March 18 at 10 A. M. Mrs. Lucinda W. Prince will speak before the Newton Centre Woman's Club on "Industrial and Vocational Training for Girls."

The Parliamentary Law and Debating Club will hold its next meeting with Mrs. Alfred W. Fuller of Newton-ville avenue, on March 18, at 2.15 P. M. Subject for debate, Resolved: That those persons holding pensions shall act as substitutes in the vacation and evening schools.

At the meeting of the Monday Club of Newton Highlands on March 8 subjects relating to the United States were considered, papers being presented upon "The French and Indian Wars," "Events that led to holding the first American Congress in Philadelphia," and "Jonathan Edwards." The club meets next week with Mrs. Davis of Ellot.

A meeting of the Pierian Club was held at the home of Mrs. Charles F.
Rogers, Jr., on Wednesday afternoon, March 10th. Miss Jeanette Grant of Newtonville gave a talk on "John Ruskin" which was more than enjoyed by all present. Miss Elizabeth Jenkins of Newtonville rendered two violin solos which were much appreciated.

The members of the Waban Woman's Club spent a very enjoyable afternoon on Monday with Miss E. Margaret Small, whose subject was "The Habitant." Miss Small first traced the origin and growth of this peasant-farmer class to its present large proportions in Canada. After exhibiting specimens of their handicraft she completed the afternoon's program by reciting, in a pleasing manner, a number of Drummond's poems, relating to the life and customs of the habitant.
Club tea was then served by the hostess, Mrs. G. M. Angier.
At the meeting on March 22, Mrs.
Archie C. Barnett entertains the club A musical—"An Afternoon with Grieg," is the attraction of the day.

The Waban Current Events Class holds its last meeting next Wednesday morning at the home of Mrs.
Frederick H. Putnam.

The Social Science Club held its regular meeting at the Hunnewell Club on Wednesday morning. Mrs. F. O.
Stanley gave an unusually interesting paper upon "Chinese Pottery," on which subject Mrs. Stanley is a con-noisseur. Her paper contained an account of the development of the art of pottery and porcelain from very earliest times to the present day. The emperors of the different dynasties of China had styles of their own and improved upon their predecessors until the art was brought to perfection in the 17th and 18th centuries. The Chinese preserved great secrecy in their methods, probably because there was no government protection. The manufacture of porcelain spread from China first to Japan and thence to the countries of Europe, Holland with its Delft being among the early nations to adopt the art. She told of the delicate work it is to manufacture porcelain and how easily it is ruined by any slight accident. The methods of production have changed very little from the ancient ones even at the present time. At a large pottery in Syracuse, N. Y., there are to-day about 4000 potter's wheels in operation, many of them being run by foot power, while a large amount of the labor is necessarily hand work. At this pottery they estimate that there is a loss of about 25 per cent of all that is made. To the Chinese every color, every decoration had some significance. Often the history of a dynasty would be portrayed upon a single piece.

The story of the familiar "Willow ware" which was told lends interest to this design. It seems that a certain Mandarin, whose palace is shown in the design, had a daughter who fell in love with a foreigner who was with his secretary. On this account they determined to elope. If one looks carefully there will be found upon the bridge in the pattern sometimes two, sometimes three figures. When there are only two, they are the lovers eloping to the island in the background; if there is a third, it is the angry Mandarin with a whip pursuing the recre-ants to lash them to death. The two doves sometimes shown are symbolic of the lovers. A willow tree is conspicuous in the design, and it is said that the name of the ware is derived from the fact that this elopement is supposed to have occurred at the time the willow was shedding its leaves.

Mrs. Stanley spoke of the fondness of the Chinese for the blue and white because it looks cool, while the New England housewife likes it because it looks clean. The paper was illustrated with specimens from Mrs. Stanley's own private collection which contains many rare pieces. It is needless to say that the morning was indeed a treat both in the new avenues of information presented and in the privilege of viewing the beautiful collection.

NONANTUM IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION

A well attended meeting of the Nonantum Improvement Association was held at 319 Watertown street, Nonantum, last Sunday. President William B. Bowen in the chair.

The following officers were elected: President, James S. Cannon; vice-president, Reuben Forknall; secretary, George Johnson; treasurer, John W. Murphy, and William J. Doherty, William S. Bowen, Hugh Monaghan, John W. Blakeney, Joseph G. Kilburn, William Hanson and William H.
Thomas, directors.

The matter of a new bridge over the Charles river from about the foot of Crescent street to Howard street, Watertown was discussed and committees reported the authorities of Newton and Watertown were favorable to the project. It was brought out that authority for such a bridge was granted nearly 30 years ago.

The need of model tenements in the village and plans for the coming Fourth of July were also considered.

A committee was appointed to draft appropriate resolutions on the death of Mr. George H. Shapley and have since prepared the following report: Learning with sorrow that in His Wisdom He has pleased our Heavenly Father to call to Himself, our beloved citizen and friend, Mr. George H.
Shapley.

We, the members of the Nonantum Improvement Association, believing it is fitting that we should record our sentiment of grief, and feeling of deep regret.

Therefore, be it resolved, that in his death, we have lost a true friend, and the City an honest and upright citizen.
Resolved, that we tender to his bereaved widow and relations, our heartfelt sympathy, and assure them, that his many kind efforts in our behalf are truly appreciated.

Resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be spread upon our records, published in the Newton papers, and a copy forwarded to the family.

It is possibly just a bit early to talk about NEW piazza furniture, but it is JUST the time to make any repairs needed on what you have.

After you read this, it will take you say until the first of April to decide just what you want done. The time we need will depend on the amount of your work of

It will be May before you realize it.

White, Mr. James Wildes, Mr. T. J. Sullivan, Mr. George Flood, Mr. Harry Kitchen, Dr. W. J. Billings and Sergeant Thomas Clay. Both teams were evenly matched and were tied till the last string and then the Sergeant's team lost its nerve and were defeated by 13 pins. Alderman White, being detained on business, did not arrive until after the second string was rolled. He rolled two strings in succession, starting with a 17 spare, but the extra work soon told on the alderman and he lost his eye on the third string. Sergeant Clay had a fondness for the gutter and after rolling 2 balls off the alley wanted to resign and put a substitute in his place, but a rising vote and much language he was prevailed upon to finish and improved so much that he had the grand total of 47 pins at the end of the string. It is understood that the losing team is not satisfied and after some of the men get a little practice there will be a return match.

The Lucy Jackson Chapter, D. A. R. of Newton, met with Mrs. Arthur E. Gill, 82 Lenox street, West Newton, on Monday, at 3 o'clock.

Owing to illness in the family, the Regent, Mrs. Arthur P. Friend was absent, and the first Vice-Regent, Mrs. George Hutchinson, presided. The name of Mrs. Charles S. Dennison was given as the delegate to attend the Continental Congress at Washington in April, with the Regent, and Mrs. George Hutchinson, Mrs. Frank W. Pray, Mrs. John L. Damon, Mrs. Arthur E. Gill, Mrs. Henry L. Whittlesey were named as alternates.

After hearing a group of songs very charmingly given by Miss Green, accompanied by Miss Norton, the Regent of the "Minute Men" Chapter of Malden, Mrs. Lillian C. Kirtland, was introduced and gave her paper on "The Evolution of the Minute Man," which was most instructive and entertaining. The company enjoyed their usual social hour in the dining room, where Mrs. Whittlesey and Mrs. Wyman assisted the hostess in serving the dainty refreshments.

Odd as it may seem, three tongues are required in hitching a span of horses to a wagon.

INSURANCE

Do you realize that the average loss by fire in U. S. is about $500,000 a day.

Right here in Massachusetts over 8000 dwellings were either destroyed or damaged during 1907, costing insurance companies $1,180,952.

Failure to insure is gross negligence.

The cost is small, protection absolute.

Be sure your automobile is covered.

Accidents are alarmingly frequent.

Boston Theatre.—The management announces for two weeks, beginning Monday, March 15, "The Man of the Hour," under the management of William A. Brady and Joseph R. Grim-mer. This play of today, which fits the municipal politics of any large city, is by George Broadhurst, and enjoyed a most spectacular run at another Boston theatre last season.
Messrs. Brady and Grimmer have endeavored to retain most of the players who were associated with that production, and, in presenting the play at the more popular prices of the Boston theatre have assured the public that nothing has been slighted. The cast will be headed by Cyril Scott, recently seen as a star in his own right in "The Prince Chap" and "The Royal Mounted." The feminine part of the company will be headed by Miss Lillian Kemble, a great favorite in Boston, and among the other favorites in the cast are Kate Lester, Marian Chapman, Rapley Holmes, Harry Harwood, James E. Wilson and William Deming.
Seats are now on sale at the box-office for this engagement, and mail orders will receive prompt attention. It should be remembered that there 800 of the best seats on the lower floor of the Boston reserved at $1.00 each for every performance. Oscar Hammerstein's Manhattan Theatre grand opera company begins an all too brief engagement of two weeks Monday night, March 29. Subscriptions for season tickets will now be received by mail and at the box-office of the theatre on the 15th, 16th and 17th instant. The sale of seats for the single performances begins on March 22 at 9 o'clock A. M.

Keith's Theatre.—Of all the many celebrities that have entered vaudeville in recent years none have made a greater success than Mike Donlin, the famous ball player of New York.
This may have been due in the beginning very largely to the fact that he was associated with his very clever wife, Mabel Hite, in a sketch which fit the pair of them like a glove. They will be one of the features of a remarkably good bill which will contain a number of old favorites, including W. C. Fields, the juggler, who has always been unique in his particular line. Then there will be that society entertainer, Willa Holt Wakefield, whose pianologues have always been received with the greatest favor in Boston. The Quigley Brothers are also on this bill with an Irish comedy act in which they introduce some of their imitable dancing. A strong team of acrobats are Martinetti and Sylvester, and the sketch for the week will be of an extremely humorous character. It will be put on by Robert Hodge and Company and is entitled "The Troubles of Bill Blithers, A Bachelor." Others are Jones and Mayo; Emil Subers; Those Allyn Girls, two well known Boston vocalists and a number of others.

Orpheum Theatre.—Another excellent bill of all star features is announced for the Orpheum Theatre next week. The head line honors are hard to place but will probably go to Charles Ross and Mabel Fenton. This popular pair will be seen in Mr. Ross's domestic comedy, "Just Like a Woman." The demure singer of dainty songs, Lucy Weston, is sure to pluck her share of honors on the bill. Her offering will be in the nature of some lyrical advice, which immediately captivated New York. The Loyal Musical Five, vocalist and instrumentalists will contribute the musical end of the program. This act is without doubt the daintiest ever offered in vaudeville. Music combined with comedy will be furnished by Charles Sweet, the musical burglar and will be seen in Boston for the first time this season.
The balance of the bill will include some of the highest class acts now on the vaudeville stage. In fact the whole bill will be one of the best balanced and strongest ever seen in Boston.

Boston Grand Opera House.—Chas.
E. Blaney's most successful melodrama, "A Child of the Regiment," will be the attraction next week at the Boston Grand Opera House, where, for the past three seasons, it has met with great success. The story of the play takes place at Fort Lookout, North Dakota, during the long, dreary winter months. Mr. Walter Wilson, who met with great success in the role of Private Tom Hadley, will again be seen in this play. Blaney has allowed the scenic artist full sway and the result has been the putting on of five of the handsomest stage pictures seen in many years. Matinees will be given Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday, at which special prices for children will prevail. Friday night will be "hookless" amateur night. The amateurs follow the regular performance. Besides the three regular cash prices there is an additional price for the best buck and wing dancer.

NAUTICAL TRAINING SCHOOL.

The U. S. S. Ranger, which is being thoroughly repaired at the Charlestown Navy Yard, will replace the schoolship Enterprise some time in April. It is expected that the transfer of equipment from the Enterprise to the Ranger will be completed in time for the cadets to leave on the annual European cruise about the middle of May. The spring entrance examination will be held Saturday, March 27, 1909.

While many of the alumni and other friends of the Massachusetts Nautical Training School throughout the State regret that the good ship Enterprise, which has been the home of the school for the last seventeen years, is of necessity to be replaced, they are glad to know that the Commissioners have been able to secure, through the Navy Department, a more serviceable ship, thus insuring a continuance of the highly creditable work now being done by the commonwealth to promote nautical education.

WHAT EVER WOMAN SHOULD KNOW

Our ideas, your ideas and the latest fashions are incorporated into the garments after we have seen the measurements and noted the individual characteristics of the form to be fitted. Our method produces garments that are strictly up-to-date, and made expressly for you, instead of suits styled six months ago, and made up at wholesale over dummy models for nobody in particular. Don't you prefer garments made to your personal measure which will cost you from 15-20 per cent less than ready made? A call will convince you.

UP TO DATE STREET LIGHTING

All but six of the thirty-two cities and towns which light their streets with electricity from the Edison Company's service are now using the new improved Tungsten street lamps. Several of the six towns (probably all) will adopt the Tungsten light as soon as arrangements can be made for changing over old contracts. These changes the Edison Company is always willing to make. The Edison's attitude in this matter of supplying towns with the latest street lighting improvements, and affording them the best possible rates for service, is best demonstrated in the case of one of the towns where a contract for street lighting was entered into four years ago, the contract to cover a period of five years. The Edison Company has voluntarily reduced the rates for street lighting in that town twice in the four years that the contract has run. Such advance steps naturally win the hearty commendation and co-operation, not only of the town officials, who have reason to be proud of their official foresight, but the inhabitants, who welcome increased illumination.

Tungsten lamps mean everywhere an increase of 40 to 60 per cent. in the amount of light secured, and also reduces the cost in some cases nearly one-half. In every case the cities and towns that have adopted Tungsten lamps have declined to take advantage of this economy by cutting down their appropriations. They have much preferred to increase the amount of light and the hours of burning. Until recent years there has been a tendency to forget the welfare of the worthy citizens whose duties called them out late at night or early in the morning. The police, physicians, ministers, milkmen and produce dealers have had to stumble through dark streets as best they could, because the average person has thought because he is usually in bed before midnight that the minority could get along in the best way possible. That forgetfulness is passing to a great degree, and in many towns provision is made for the special lighting of the streets in the dark hours of the early morning for the convenience of the milkmen and produce dealers.

A great element of safety comes to the householder and the business man by keeping the streets lighted after midnight. Those late hours are the time when the most burglaries and other crimes are perpetrated. The criminal dreads the light. It is additionally important to afford ample facilities for his capture, and one of these is bright streets. The Edison Company has not been backward in substituting these lamps for the old-fashioned types, in fact, has brought them to the attention of city and town officials in every class. An offer gladly accepted.

It will be of interest to residents of Newton to know that Mrs. May Sleeper Ruggles, the contralto soloist and teacher of voice, Boston, with studio 602 Pierce building, Copley square, will receive pupils at her residence, 33 Hancock street, Auburndale. Mrs. Ruggles is the principal of the Lederheim school of vocal music.

MR. FISHER SURPRISED

Mr. E. B. Fisher of Austin street, Newtonville was agreeably surprised on Monday, by the presentation of a beautiful reclining chair. Mr. Fisher, who has seen forty years' service in the postoffice at Boston, recently resigned his position as foreman of the box department on account of ill health and this gift shows a loving comradeship, which will be deeply treasured.

Mr. Fisher enlisted in the army in June, 1862, and was taken prisoner in the first raid, by Stewart, in the Civil War. His case with that of 19 other prisoners was brought to the attention of President Lincoln, and the twenty were eventually exchanged on parole. His loyalty to the flag and memory of the President is supreme.

"Faithful and true" has always been his watch-word for every service rendered the P. O. Department.

an account of his recent tour of investigation through the famous museums of Europe, described the faults of arrangement in some and the excellent, harmonious taste in others. With this introduction to his main topic, Mr. Fairbanks went into detail regarding the interior plans of the new museum, what each room is to be used for and how the exhibits will be artistically arranged. The museum is furthering the art school and in addition is interested in the development of classes and conferences and intends to be useful in an educative way to school children. The last meeting of the club for the season will be held in April and will be observed as Ladies' Night.

HUNNEWELL CLUB

The cowboy pool tournament is moving slowly. Mr. C. R. Loring and Mr. A. F. Adams are in the finals in Class B, Mr. H. M. North and Dr. Chapman are the only men in class C to reach the third round, and Mr. Chipman is still alone in his glory in the third round of class D.

In bowling this week, Mr. E. T. Ryder has captured both records for single and three string with 139 and 350 respectively.

The Saturday night whist, with eight tables in play gave these scores: Wilcox and Gleason 78
Douglas and Eustis 68
Tolman and Miller 66
Sprague and Snyder 66
Sommerby and C. C. Smith 65 Bonney and Loring 65
Uiley and Tapley 65
Waitt and Brown 65
Hickox and Cummings 63
Sampson and Hall 63
Edmonds and E. F. Sawyer 61 Norton and Jos. Smith 61 Crawford and Marshall 58 Alexander and Estabrooks 52 Gay and F. E. Sawyer 51
Naylor and Byfield 49

There is a close fight in the club bowling tournament, where teams captained by Potter and Garcelon are tied with 22 wins each, and Captain Ryder's team close behind at 20 wins. Four other teams are also within easy distance of the leaders.

The club's annual theatricals, one of the most important events on the organization's calendar, took place Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, when there was presented a delightful three-act comedy, "A Regiment of Two." The audiences completely filled the hall and were most enthusiastic.

There was everything that made for the audience's enjoyment. The action was brisk, the dialogue bright and intensely amusing, the stage setting most attractive and the whole performance was characterized by smoothness worthy of the professional stage.

The individual work of the performers is deserving of praise. Mrs. Ralph W. Bartlett as Lena and Dr. Leslie H. Naylor as Conrad Meizer furnished much splendid comedy as the German lovers. Mrs. A. C. Cummings as Grace Sewall, the young wife, did especially well; Mrs. H. L. Dexter, Jr. as Eliza Wilton was capital, while Mrs. H. M. North made much of the role of Laura Wilton.

Frank H. Burt as Lord Dudley was very entertaining, while H. H. Howe was at his best as Harry Brentworth. L. M. Ferguson as Ira Wilton was entitled to much credit and E. Taber McFarlin as Arthur Sewall was all that could be desired. Fletcher Dexter as Jim Buckner from Texas won many a hearty laugh by his impersonation.

MISREPRESENTED

Good Idea Club Put in a False Light

I take pleasure in publishing the following open letter which has been sent to the Boston Post this week:

To the Editor of the Boston Sunday Post.

Dear Sir:—Referring to the article which appeared on page 35 of the Boston Sunday Post, March 14, 1909, treating of the present and future work of the Good Idea Club of Auburn, I desire to say that the impression set forth as to the underlying motives of this organization, its purposes, scope and aspirations, is causing considerable unfavorable comment which reflects discredit upon both the club and its members.

To correct this impression, I have been requested by the officers of our club to write this letter explaining the real motives, purposes and intentions which has stimulated this movement, and to point out to your readers those portions of the article that were authorized by me. We expect you to place this letter prominently before your readers as an act of justice to the members of the Good Idea Club, that they may be set right in the minds of those who are interested in true education.

The three most objectionable features of your reporter's version of his interview with me upon which he bases conclusions that are strictly his own, are embraced in the following unfortunate expressions and inferences:—

First, that the Good Idea Club aspires to the establishing of a "New Cult."

Second, that this organization is prepared to teach the art of recognizing "soul-mates;"

Third, that physical perfection is the sole end in view in the work which they have undertaken.

A careful re-reading of the article will partially correct the first impression that has resulted in the foregoing conclusions, and especially that portion of it which gives what purports to be an extract from the preamble of the Good Idea Club's Constitution:

"We all agree to work together in harmony upon an equitable basis to bring into realization the highest ideals of the Good Idea Club, according to the principles of Harmony, Equality and Co-operation as set forth in the Froebel philosophy which trains the three-fold human activity to express itself as a unit, individually, collectively and mutually for GOOD in its most practical, theoretical and idealistic forms."

If the following out of this philosophy in everyday life with the manifest intention of applying it to every thought, to every feeling and to every act, is in effect really establishing a "New Cult," then the members of the Good Idea Club must plead guilty to having this ideal in mind while pursuing the work of the club. It is only fair to say, however, that the members of the Good Idea Club take no credit to themselves for the discoveries made by your reporter. I presume the expression "soul-mates" presented itself to his imagination as a logical conclusion from a talk we had in reference to "The Human Limit," a Psychophysical Novel by Newbold Hazard, shortly to be published by the club. In pointing out "Perfect Symmetry of Figure Tenet of Newest Cult," the impression has been given that physical perfection was the sole end and aim of the Good Idea Club. While it is true that any good system of physical culture has strength, reserve power and symmetry for an ideal, we are attempting to go beyond this and hope to gain social and mental strength and resource, by employing practical methods that embrace high moral standards and idealistic conceptions. In our social gatherings which occur on the 27th day of each month, we endeavor to unify mental, moral and physical health according to the good ideas of our members. This creates a pure and charming atmosphere for both old and young.

Among the minor flights of fancy indulged in by your reporter are:

His interview with Mrs. Merrill, (whom he has never met) in which "wrinkles, halting gait, longing and heart-yearning" are freely discussed in connection with the "music of the spheres."

The gymnasium scene in the coming university where physicians "will be in charge to make measurements and chart the progress in every individual case, so that all may see the improvement";

That the three colors of "red, yellow and blue, which illustrates the basis of all, etc."

The facts furnished your representative set forth our present social undertaking according to the three-fold principle, a proposed system of physical culture upon a similar plan, and an ultimate object of a university where various arts and sciences could be pursued at a comparatively small cost to club members.

The Sunday Post stands for fair play. We ask you to publish this correction of the adverse impression created in your last week's issue.

Yours sincerely,
EDWIN CHASE MERRILL,
Auburndale, March 18, 1909.

Castle Square Theatre—Clyde Fitch has written many plays, and he has never written a failure. Among the best and most popular of them is "Her Own Way." It will be given at the Castle Square next week by the John Craig Stock Company, and it will reveal Mr. Fitch's ingenuity at the construction of an interesting plot and at the writing of entertaining dialogue. Best of all is a charming picture of childhood upon which the first act opens. The children of the Carley family at the breakfast table, and their merry chatter is fascinating in its humor and simplicity. Many types of American character are brought to life by Mr. Fitch in "Her Own Way," and under the direction of William Parke the play will be cast and played with more than usual skill.

NEW PASTOR

Rev. Robert W. VanKirk, who has accepted an unanimous call to become pastor of the Lincoln-park Baptist church in West Newton, will preach his first sermon in the new parsonage April 4. He comes to this city from the First church in Jackson, Mich., after a pastorate there of exactly six years.

Rev. Mr. VanKirk is not only well known as a clergyman but as an interpreter of Browning's poetry, which he has found a delightful diversion. He has appeared before many universities, college and literary clubs to present his interpretations of Browning, and next summer will be one of the lecturers at the assembly at Lake Chautauque, N. Y., and at the Chautauque in Ames, Ia.

He was born in western Pennsylvania of Dutch ancestry who came to this country from Holland in 1663 and settled on Long Island. He was graduated from Princeton in 1884 and from the Newton theological institution in 1887.

His first independent charge was in Grand Rapids, Mich., where he remained four years, during which his church nearly doubled in membership. He was then called to Ypsilanti, Mich., where he had an opportunity of exerting his influence upon the 1000 students in the Michigan normal college.

From there he was called to Rockland, Me., where he had a prosperous and happy pastorate of five and a half years. Then he received the call to Jackson, Mich., April, 1903.

Rev. Mr. VanKirk leaves the Jackson church in an entirely harmonious condition, with a pastorate of nearly 700. There have been about 40 persons baptized in the church the past few weeks, 30 being young men and boys.

Rev. Mr. VanKirk has served as a member of the state board of state missions in Michigan a large part of his residence in that state. He was chairman of the examining board of Kalamazoo college three years, and for several years served as president of the Carnegie library board in Jackson.

Lincoln-park church is one of the flourishing Baptist parishes of this city. Its most recent pastor was Rev. Edwin F. Snell, who resigned a few months ago to become pastor of a Congregational church in Mansfield.

THE LINCOLN FARM ASSOCIATION

From the Appeal of Clarence H. Mackay, Treasurer.

"In August, 1905, the birthplace of Abraham Lincoln, a farm of 110 acres located in the blue grass region about fifty miles from Louisville, Kentucky, was saved from the hands of speculators by the patriotic act of a private citizen. A few months later the Lincoln Farm Association was formed for the purpose of developing the property into a Lincoln Memorial National Park that should stand forever as a fitting tribute to the great President.

As Lincoln was in every sense a man of the people, it was determined that the necessary fund should be raised, not by the gifts of a wealthy few, but by appealing directly to the people themselves. Every man, woman or child contributing some amount from twenty-five cents upward, should be made an Honorary Member of the Association, without liability to further dues or assessments of any sort; a handsome Certificate should be issued to each one, and the name should be enrolled in the Permanent Record to be kept always in a place of honor at the Park."

The fact that more than 80,000 people have already contributed over $100,000 indicates the favor with which the project has been received.

On February 12th, President Roosevelt standing on the steps of the old cabin, dedicated the Lincoln Birthplace Farm as a permanent National Memorial to the great President, and laid the corner stone of the Memorial Building which among other things will shelter the Birthplace Cabin.

To aid the Lincoln Farm Association in procuring funds, Committees have been appointed in the different states and these Committees, through the Mayors of the several cities, have secured the appointment of sub-committees.

The Lincoln Centenary Committee for the City of Newton appointed last week by Mayor Hutchinson, held its first meeting at City Hall on Monday afternoon. Mr. William C. Bray of Newton Centre was appointed Chairman.

The work undertaken by this Committee deserves the hearty support of every man, woman and child in the community. Will you not take your part in this unselfish, patriotic movement to honor the memory of the great Lincoln, whose first principle was a government "of the people, by the people and for the people?" Your contribution may be whatever you choose, from twenty-five cents upward—it is the spirit in which it is given that counts. Your Certificate will be promptly engraved and forwarded, and your name enrolled in the Permanent Record.

Subscription papers may be found at the several drug stores in the City and contributions may be left there or sent to members of the Committee, whose names and residence are as follows:—

Messrs. William C. Bray, Newton Centre. William F. Bacon, Newton.

Frank E. Spaulding, Newtonville. John S. Alley, West Newton. George D. Harvey, Auburndale. A. C. Burnett, Waban.

Edwin O. Childs, Jr., Newton. All moneys received will be forwarded to Mr. Clarence H. Mackay, Treasurer, 74 Broadway, New York, who will issue membership certificates and forward the same to the proper parties.

Edwin O. Childs, Jr., Secretary and Treasurer, Lincoln Centenary Committee for the City of Newton.

AMUSEMENT WITH A PURPOSE

In coming to Boston to introduce himself to the local public as "a humorous traveller," Mr. R. G. Knowles announces his appearances as providing "amusement with a purpose." As a traveller he has made use of his keen sense of humor, quick study of character, and an inclination to look upon the bright side of life; to secure a fund of amusing stories and illustrations of native wit which give color to his descriptions of his rambles in foreign lands. He has just concluded a series of very successful appearances at Daly's Theatre and is to repeat at Tremont Temple on five successive Friday evenings and Saturday afternoons, beginning this week, the same entertaining features which gained him favor in the metropolis. Mr. Knowles has expended a round hundred thousand dollars in his travel and preparations for the present season, having secured all that was best in photographic and motion picture reproductions of the scenes he has visited. Next Friday evening and Saturday afternoon Mr. Knowles will take for his subject "Ireland As It Is," and describe in a dramatic manner, his experiences during his recent tour in the "Emerald Isle," showing glimpses of the life and scenery of the country which have proved vastly entertaining to his New York audiences. The subjects for his later appearances will be duly announced.

POLICE PARAGRAPHS

Charles A. Keller, aged 33, living at 163 Adams street, was fined $100 and sentenced to three months in the house of correction for alleged maintaining a liquor nuisance, and his wife, Mary G. Keller, 25, for making an alleged sale, was fined $50 on Monday.

Both defendants pleaded not guilty to the charges against them, and both appealed from the decision of Judge Kennedy. The Keller dwelling was raided Sunday night by patrolmen Goode, Hannon, Hughes and Larrievae, after patrolman Larrievae had visited the place and bought a quantity of liquor. Keller told the court that he bought a quantity of beer that was found in the house for his own use, saying he usually took three or four bottles at a time for illness. It was brought out in testimony that he had been convicted of a similar offence in Waltham. It was the first time in several months that there had been an arrest here for alleged maintaining a liquor nuisance.

Is a necessary part of the equipment of every home where there are children.

Edited by Commissioner Andrew Sloan Draper, LL. D., of the New York State Education Department, the work constitutes a carefully graded course of Intellectual Development for children from the Kindergarten to the High School.

The beginning is made with Pleasing Kindergarten Stories, Games, Songs, and Occupations which amuse and at the same time instruct the child.

The fascination of the Fairy Stories, Folk Lore, and Mythology of all Nations is next brought to bear on the growing mind, and the child is carried by its own interest from phase to phase through the various sections.

The higher branches of Culture and Education are represented in the Tenth Volume. Music, the Fine Arts and the Drama, and the Intermediate Stages are fully covered in the Intervening Volumes.

A new and carefully finished edition has just come from the press.
There are ten handsome three quarter leather volumes profusely illustrated.

The work is sold exclusively upon the "Club Plan" and payments are so arranged as to suit any pocket.

The thoughtful Mother cannot afford to be without it.

To the underhanded methods employed by Governor to defeat the Farnham bill asked for by our city government, to which I have referred in my State House letter this week, I must now add the charge of inconsistency, for Governor Draper, who balks at the idea of authorizing the payment of public money for the benefit of the widow and children of our late City Engineer, has already approved an act to authorize the city of Springfield to pay money to the widow of one of its police officers and another act to authorize the city of Boston to pay money to the widow of E. W.
Hudson. It is evident that Governor Draper has made an invidious discrimination in the Farnham matter.

The proposal to tax tea, cocoa, lemons and figs, as outlined in the new tariff measure now before Congress, will if adopted, cause considerable trouble to Republican Congressmen all over the country. Tea and cocoa are as much necessities of life as coffee, and while the people of this country, apparently care little for taxes raised indirectly, when it comes out in the open on matters of food and drink, some one will have to suffer at the polls.

Attention is called to the appeal of the Lincoln Centenary Committee in another part of the paper for funds towards the Lincoln Memorial.

The Farnham bill was quietly killed last week in the Senate as predicted in these columns, and the Governor is responsible. This method of defeating legislation has been frequently used by former executives but I did have a higher opinion of Governor Draper's back bone and willingness to assume responsibility. The passage of this bill was desired, I believe by every citizen of Newton acquainted with the facts, and its defeat will debar the city from paying a little tribute to the splendid work of its late City Engineer.

Ex-senator Albert L. Harwood of Newton Centre and ex-senator James H. Vahey had an interesting hearing on Monday before the joint committee on Ways and Means on the charges made last fall by candidate Vahey that Mr. Harwood, a trustee of the Wrentham School for Feeble Minded, had profited by the sale of land to the state for the site of that institution.
The Newton Centre man had acted as counsel for the Farrar estate in this manner and had received several checks from the state treasurer in making settlements. Mr. Harwood flatly denied anything improper in his connection with the affair, saying that he had acted as counsel for the Farrar estate, when it had run down to a low ebb, but that now Percy Farrar was able to manage it himself. Of course with Newton people, as I stated last fall, there is absolutely no question as to Mr. Harwood's honesty in the matter and it is a great satisfaction to have it investigated.

The long awaited report of the Metropolitan Improvement commission of which Mr. Henry B. Day of West Newton is a member was sent in this week.
The commission was appointed to lay out a comprehensive plan for the improvement of Boston and the metropolitan district and anything like a brief review of the report is impossible.

Two matters which will interest Newton people, if the plans of the commission are ever realized relate to the better transportation to and thru Boston and to the construction of a parkway from Hammond's pond, Cabot woods and the Boyd Park route to Charles river at Watertown. The latter suggestion is advocated by real estate interests in Newton Centre and while desirable in some sense is of doubtful practical value to the district.

The transportation suggestions include a four track tunnel between the North and South stations with the North station acting as the terminal for trains entering the South station and vice versa. The commission wisely concludes that it is unwise to recommend that these improvements be undertaken at the present time, either by the state, the city of Boston or the metropolitan district. This conclusion is based on the fact that the total debt of the metropolitan district at present is over $177,000,000 or 8.27% of the assessed valuation and the yearly charges for interest, etc. on this sum is 25.33% of the yearly running expenses of the various municipalities. The commission also approves the creation of one commission to succeed the Metropolitan Park commission, the Water and Sewerage commission and the Charles River commission, with a metropolitan advisory council composed of the mayors and chairmen of selection of the cities and towns in the district. It is safe to assume that considerable study will be given the report of the commission and it will be some time before its recommendations will receive active discussion.

It is rumored that there will be a majority report against all the direct nomination bills which have been presented to the Legislature this season.
It is certain that the dissenters will be assured of a fair hearing and it would not surprise me in the least to see House Chairman Garcelon turned down when the final vote is recorded.
It is also a safe bet that the Senate will kill any legislation of this character.

Mr. George H. Ellis of West Newton was a speaker before the Education committee this week on the proposed consolidation of state boards. He favored a board of 9 members and thought the present State Board of Education was not suited to handle modern conditions.

The House killed the so called Vahey bill to authorize juries in murder cases to qualify a verdict of guilty in the first degree with the condition "without capital punishment." The vote was 54 to 146. Representative Bishop upheld the sentiment of this city by voting aye, while Representatives Garcelon and Converse lined up with the advocates of the old Mosaic law, which is decidedly out of place in this twentieth century.

One of the smoothest attempts to obtain legislation without publicity was the "near" passage of a bill to transfer the granting of druggists' sixth class liquor licenses from local authority to the State Board of Pharmacy and to eliminate the advertisement which has always been a distinct feature of the state's policy in granting all forms of liquor licenses. The bill was reported from the Public Health Committee and had nearly completed the legislative formula when its effect was discovered. It has now gone to the Liquor Law committee as it should have, in the first instance.

Women's Clubs.

Edited by Miss Grace M. Burt.

At the meeting of the Newton Centre Woman's Club on March 11, Prof.
G. H. Palmer of Harvard university lectured upon "An Unknown Poet." This poet is known to us through translations made by Carmen Sylva.
On Thursday morning of this week Mrs. Lucinda W. Prince spoke of "Industrial and Vocational Training for Girls." Her talk included a description of the work being done at the Trades School for Girls which is being carried on by the Women's Educational and Industrial Union of Boston.
Samples of the work done by the girls was exhibited and an account of the class in salesmanship given. Several of the large firms of the city co-operate with this class in helping to make it effective.

Mr. Edward F. Hartman, secretary of the Massachusetts Civic League, spoke before the Social Science Club on Wednesday on the pernicious question of "Billboards and Civic Improvement." Mr. Hartman paid his tribute to the power of the women's clubs, saying that they possess great potentiality. They are taking up something of importance and accomplishing something. The women are recognizing that the work of the community is worthy, necessary and noble, if they make it so. There are unlimited opportunities and possibilities. Every essential problem may be solved by the women. The billboard question may be entirely solved by them. He stated that 90 per cent of such advertising is addressed to the women and, if they would take the stand of not buying anything thus advertised, it would have a very potent effect. The billboards are in every way a nuisance as well as a blot on the landscape. Mr. Hartman felt that the most effective way to get rid of them is to appeal to the advertisers, to arouse public opinion against the existence of these monstrosities and when once public opinion is thoroughly alive, there will be little danger of failing to secure what is wanted. He cited instances of what has been done in many places in this state and throughout the country toward ridding the country of them and for civic improvement generally. The community that is dirty outwardly will be dirty inwardly. Hence civic improvement is more far reaching than we at first think. It is impossible to take a problem and isolate it, but it must be considered in its relation to others of the community. France and Germany have devised a kind of billboard that is really artistic and secure a substantial income from them. In response to a question as to the probability of being able to get rid of this nuisance ultimately, Mr. Hartman was of the opinion that it will take fifty years before it is satisfactorily settled.

An appeal has been sent to the Newton Federation from the master of the Independent Industrial School asking the co-operation of the members. "One thing which we should like to bring to pass," he writes, "in connection with our school is some mode of employment for our boys outside of school hours in order to enable them to earn some money while in school and thus prevent them leaving school on account of having to help out in providing for the family. In this way we can keep hold on each boy two or three years longer than we could do otherwise."

"At present we are equipped for simple woodworking and our boys can make such projects as boxes for plants, etc., drawers for tables or cabinets, picture frames, trellises, for plants, taboretts or tables, in fact any small cabinet or carpenter work that does not require special machinery.
We are training them to do such work in the most workmanlike manner and we would not let a piece of work go out from our shop that would not be satisfactory from the standpoint of workmanship."

Independent Industrial School, Stearns Building, Newton.

Owing to the fire which destroyed the Home Circle will hold a sale of food, aprons, and fancy articles in Taylor's Block, Auburn street, Auburndale.

used for charitable purposes the patronage of the public is earnestly solicited.

Club on Wednesday morning Mr.
Thomas Curley will speak on "Playgrounds." Guests may be invited.

The Newton Centre Woman's Club will observe "Guest Night," on March 25, at 8 P. M. After a reception two Club considered Home, Lessoning and Frederick the Great at its meeting on March 15, supplemented by readings from "Nathan der Weise." The next meeting of the club will be held on Tuesday, March 23, at 2.30, at the Higelow school, Newton. Miss O'Connor, a former member, will give an illustrated lecture.

The Newtonville Woman's Guild held its regular meeting on Tuesday afternoon, March 16. Mr. Chas. S.
Thomas, head of the English department of the high school, gave an exceedingly interesting lecture, "A Comparison between The Madonna of the Future, by Henry James and Andrea Del Sarto by Robert Browning." Tea was served by the Industrial Committee, Mrs. Vose, chairman.

The last of the series of lectures on Current Events was given by Miss Northrup last Wednesday morning at the home of Mrs. Frank A. Arend in Waban. The course has been most interesting and instructive and there seems to be a general wish for a repetition of the class next year.

The West Newton Educational Club on March 12th, had the pleasure of hearing Prof. Wm. C. Ward who talked on "Growth of Social Ideas." Following a short discussion there was a cake and candy sale from which quite a sum was realized.

THE GIBSON RECITAL

Elliot church was well filled last evening with lovers of music attracted by the presence of Mr. Archer Gibson, the well known organist of Brooklyn, N. Y. While the program as a whole was not as enjoyable as those given by Mr. Gibson in the past, two numbers held the audience almost spellbound. The allegro movement from Handel was splendidly played with remarkable delicacy and skill, while the "Enchanted Bells" by Haberbier was another beautiful number. Du Bois' "Cantilene Nuptiale" with its rippling bells and dainty harmony was much enjoyed, while the gloomy but magnificent chords of the Beethoven Funeral March filled the church with melody. Mr. Gibson's own "Improvisation" had a most impressive ending with an echo and bell which died away in the distance, as the audience seemed to hold its breath in order to hear its every sound. It ill becomes a layman to criticize such a high priest of music as Mr. Gibson and yet the joyous, rollicking "Swedish March" was played altogether too fast and its finale, as well as that to the Overture to William Tell, to which the same criticism applies, became simply blurs of melody on account of the rapid tempo.

At the conclusion of the regular program, Mr. Gibson improvised for a half hour longer for a small audience of friends and admirers.

The next concert in the series will be given April 8th when Prof. H. J. Krumpel, the blind organist, will play.

On Friday, March 12, 1909, the Amherst Dramatic Club gave Shakespeare's "As You Like It" in the Assembly hall of the High school, before a large and enthusiastic audience. The play was well given and was successful in every way.

On Saturday, March 20, the High school gymnastic team will give an exhibition in the drill hall, Newtonville. The exhibition will consist of class and individual work under the direction of Dr. Brown.

The Klosfit Petticoat

No More Draw Strings
No More Gatherings and Puckerings Fits the Hips Like a Corset

Think how much this means to the smooth set of your dress—how much more perfectly it will hang over a "Klosfit" than it does over the old style petticoat with its draw strings.

At either side—just over the hips—the "Klosfit" has a Jersey Gusset with elastic bands at the waist line. This jersey fits over the hips without a wrinkle, insuring smooth, graceful lines for the dress skirt. The vent at the back makes it handy to put on and off. The glove clasps keep it always closed and smooth. The elastic gore insures a snug, close fit without tightness or restriction of movement.

Every "Klosfit" Petticoat is guaranteed to wear better, fit better, give more complete satisfaction and make your dress fit better than any petticoat you have ever worn before.

A large audience attended the Walcott Trophy Meet on Saturday, March 13. More than the usual interest was shown because of the possibility of the cup being won for the 3rd time and becoming the property of one of the members.

As the meet progressed it was seen that 3 men, J. J. Cody, Jr., C. V. Moore and Theo. Morton, were the three who would fight the contest out to the finish. The men finished in the order above, Cody having 514 points, Moore 410 8-10, Morton 376.

Mr. Cody won the beautiful cup. Moore, T. Morton, P. Morton and D. Webster each received shields to commemorate the event.

Mr. A. H. Walcott of Newton, the giver of this cup, has signified his intention of again putting up a trophy to be contested for by the members.

His generosity and interest in all around physical development is much appreciated by the members and officers of the association.

This new cup will be presented in the fall and already a committee is at work arranging a set of rules to govern these contests.

Y. M. C. A. MEET

The sixth annual indoor scratch and handicap athletic meet of the Y. M. C. A. teams of Massachusetts and Rhode Island took place last evening in the Newton Y. M. C. A. gymnasium with 126 entries for the various events which included 20-yard dash, shot put, potato race, running high jump, three standing jumps, 600-yard run, and team races. A new record of 49 feet 11 inches in the shot put was made by F. H. Schoenfeld of Boston, Jacobs of Newton being second.

Cambridge won the meet with a lead of three points over Newton and Boston, which were tied for second place. The teams representing the association in Everett, Malden and Lynn tier for fourth place, and all the remaining points were won by Massachusetts teams. The competition lasted nearly five hours.

One of the features was a 10-mile race, in which Roy Welton, the Lawrence Y. M. C. A. runner, who made such an excellent showing in the Olympic marathon run in London last summer, went against three picked men, whom he outran, going the distance in 59m. 32 4-5s., gaining 15 laps over his opponents. Ellis of Brockton went one and a half miles against Welton. Welton of Somerville then went five miles against the Lawrence runner, and the last laps were run by Flood of Newton. All three of the picked runners finished in a condition which approached exhaustion, while Welton appeared fresh after the final sprint.

The local men who won places were Jacobs, fifth in potato race; C. V. Moore, first; D. L. Mahoney, third and Wm. Archer, fourth in 600-yard run, while in the team races Newton (Moore, MacRae, Hinds and Maguire) beat Fitchburg in the best time of the evening.

The points were won as follows: Cambridge 17, Newton 15, Boston 14, Everett 9, Lynn 9, Malden 9, Holyoke 7, Brockton 5, Worcester 2, Somerville 2, Wakefield 2.

Castle Square Theatre—There is a laugh to each minute of "All on Account of Eliza," the farce that John Craig will produce at the Castle Square next week. Its scenes are laid in the country, and its plot concerns the doings of a fair young school mistress and the talk of the town about her. Every type of character common to the rural districts of New England and New York is present in the play for the sake of emotional and humorous contrast, and in addition there are two Germans that add especial amusement by means of their accentric speech and manners. The play will be staged under the direction of William Parke, and each of its acts will give a picturesque representation of scenes in a country village. The cast will be arranged so as to bring about the full resources of the John Craig Stock Company.

Hearings occupied over two hours at the meeting of the aldermen on Monday evening, while actual business was transacted in twenty minutes. President Weston was in the chair and Aldermen Avery, Bacon, Burr, Cahot, Clarke, Doherty, Gray, Jones, Leonard, Moore, Stone, Underwood, White and Williamson were also present.

On a venire for four traverse jurors for the Superior Court, at Cambridge on April 5th, Alderman Stone drew the names of George E. Wales, Cedar street, Newton Centre, Joseph H. Willey, Turner street, Newtonville, George R. Aston, Oakland street, Newton, and Herbert M. Warren, Fountain street, West Newton.

On petition of the Gas Light Co. for poles on Putnam street, Capt. S. E. Howard said that this street was narrow and steep, with a large amount of traffic. Poles in the street would be dangerous and a great inconvenience if placed in the sidewalk. Previous petitions had been refused and there were other ways of serving electric light on this street. Capt. Howard said that Arthur Carroll, another alderman, opposed Dr. H. P. Belknap's testimony as to methods abroad, and coming down to Putnam street said that this petition would place a group of poles about his place, which was more than his share. He believed equally good service could be obtained by placing the wires underground. Mr. H. B. Patrick entered his protest as the street was lined with beautiful trees and thought the poles would be an injury. Mr. Clinton L. Eddy said the poles would greatly interfere with the fine maples adjoining his estate. Dr. D. W. Wells did not know whether he was in favor or opposed to the petition. He wished electric light and wanted some way to get it without great expense. If there was some other way to reach his house without poles on the street, he opposed the petition, if not, he was in favor. Mr. J. L. Damon said he would like the electric light and said he would be willing to have poles placed on his land if the street was not feasible. He warned the board that citizens would not put up with poor lighting service forever and would leave Newton if the service was not kept up to date.

At the hearings of the Gas Light Co. for one pole and for attachments on Sterling street, Mr. Joseph Eddy appeared. Mr. Charles Pierce, for the Company stated that in order to serve a prospective customer it was necessary to place one pole in between two telephone poles.

At the hearing on petition of the Telephone Co. for locations on Allston street, Mr. H. S. Allen for the Company said that their wires had been ordered off private property and while two of their customers could be served from an existing pole, one, Mr. Morton, would be deprived of service unless the poles were authorized. It was immaterial to the Company which side of the street was taken for the purpose. Mr. Marcus Morton said he was the unfortunate, but innocent cause of all the trouble about poles. The wires to his house had been ordered off of three adjoining premises, and while he had no fault to find with his neighbors, he desired telephone service. He might also wish to have electric service, but had been unable to do so in the past. He believed that the aesthetic point of view should give way to the practical.

Mr. A. L. Wakefield said he should be very sorry to see poles on Allston street.

No one appeared on the petition of the Telephone Co. for attachments on Forest avenue.

The real hearing of the evening was that on petition of S. W. Wilder and others for removal of street car tracks from Homer street. Mr. Wilder said that Homer street in its present condition was unsafe for travel; that the removal of tracks would increase values of the real estate and that the majority of those affected would have farther to go for trolley service than the great bulk of residents all over the city. Homer street, he said, is naturally a beautiful street and would become a thoroughfare if the tracks were removed. At present it is unsafe for children and unsafe for vehicles. The removal would benefit land on the street as well as that contiguous. There is no logical reason for the tracks to remain on the street and there was a distinct understanding when tracks were laid there, that if the boulevard was constructed, they should be removed. When tracks are transferred to Commonwealth avenue, the connecting streets should be improved.

Hon. A. L. Harwood said that Homer street was a narrow street parallel to the boulevard, and was not a driving street under present conditions. It costs more to maintain such a street, a fact which should appeal to the aldermen, if no public convenience is served. Mr. Harwood commented on the six cent fare saying that patrons of this line ought to be paid six cents for riding on it, on account of its rough condition. He also thought that if the Company was obliged to improve its roadbed, it would want to charge ten cents for future rides. He emphasized the fact that it was only a few steps to Commonwealth avenue where there was a much better track.

Letters were read from H. J. Carlson, the architect who said that he could not advise his clients to build or have on Homer street under present conditions, and from Mrs. Mary G. Rice, who called attention to the grinding noise of the cars at the curve into Centre street.

Mr. A. E. Alvord, called to give the real estate point of view, said that the values would be benefited by removal of the tracks. He stated that on the 3500 feet of street there were 23 houses, of which 18 were for sale and 6 vacant. Mr. Alvord said that his experience showed that people were reluctant to locate on a street with car tracks.

Mr. E. B. Bowen said he had no personal interest, but believed a great benefit would accrue by the removal of the tracks. He believed the aldermen should be given a better street and better service by the change.

Mr. A. C. Walworth said that he was interested on account of the First church, as the cars passed close to its chapel door. The church services were frequently interrupted by the noise. A church, he said, more than any other building, needs a trolley car a great nuisance. He also thought it absurd to run cars on parallel streets, and said that Homer street in winter was intolerable; an unsafe street to drive on and an unsafe street to raise children on. He thought that with car service on Commonwealth avenue, it would be possible to give a fifteen minute service up Centre street, where it was now half hourly.

Col. J. G. White spoke for Trinity church saying that the noise in summer was frightful.

Mr. C. E. Kelsey said his interest was that of a citizen of Newton Centre and a member of the First church. He recalled that on one occasion the minister had to stop his sermon until the car had passed by. While the removal of the tracks would inconvenience some one, as the streets belong to all the citizens, he thought the larger number would be benefited by removal. If this street was considered as a new location, no one would dream of laying car tracks in it.

Mr. G. N. Goddard called attention to the fact that more people north of Commonwealth avenue now went to Homer street for the Newtonville cars than would be the case if the residents south of Homer street were required to go to Commonwealth avenue. He estimated the houses south of Homer street at 12 with 120 north of the avenue.

Mr. George F. Wales said he had a possible customer for land who would purchase if the tracks were to come up. Last summer he had seen a lamp-lighter struck by a car and thrown into the street.

Representative E. B. Bishop said that Commonwealth avenue was the natural place for car tracks, that the plan of "vested rights" was fallacious and the question was simply one of the general good.

Mr. H. J. Kellaway said that the present service had been nicknamed "the Bump Line" and quoted the Secretary of the Metropolitan Park commission as saying that car lines do not improve property. Mr. Kellaway said that the development which followed a car location was not residential.

Mr. A. C. Burnham for the Davis estate said the present blight on Homer street will discourage building and ultimately a cheaper class of structures would be erected. He thought the street was capable of great beauty with its trees and curving lines.

Rev. C. E. Tullar opened for the remonstrants, presenting a petition against removal of the tracks bearing 90 names, which was read by the clerk. Letters were also read from Mr. H. G. Brinckerhoff, Mr. Sidney R. Porter and Mr. H. R. Havens, the latter withdrawing his name from the Wilder petition.

Mr. Tullar then said that he had spent four months, eleven years ago searching for a home and was unaware until tonight that he had chosen such an undesirable place as Homer street. He criticized the petition, asking if the statement that service could be equally well maintained on Commonwealth avenue was any reason for removal of tracks on Homer street, sarcastically alluding to the "resulting economy to the street railway company" from such removal, and commenting upon the so-called narrowness of the street. In the 14 years he had lived there he had never heard of an accident of any importance. He warned the aldermen that if the tracks came up and the street was used by automobiles, its curves would make it dangerous, especially to children. Mr. Tullar spoke of the difficulties involved in travelling to Commonwealth avenue for car service, thru unaccepting streets, and quoted the City Engineer's estimate of $7500 to place these streets in condition. In conclusion, Mr. Tullar said he would join in a petition to the street railway company to discontinue its service during church hours.

Mr. O. D. Fellows, criticized the petitioners as not residents of Homer street, saying he had lived there 16 years and that 50 houses had been erected there during that time, most of them due to the street railway service. He said it would be a nuisance on these people to induce them to settle there because of the track and then take it up. He objected to the removal, because the street was less dangerous now than it would be with more automobile travel, and also believed his property was worth more now than with the tracks taken up. Mr. S. J. Brower thought the matter resolved itself into a case of selfishness, pure and simple, people who have nothing to lose and possibly something to gain, favoring removal, while those who are dependent upon the car line for access to the stores, churches and schools believe the tracks are necessary. He believed the short interruption to the church services was not comparable to the inconvenience of all the people who used the cars.

Dr. C. A. Boutelle said that it took some time to switch cars from Commonwealth avenue onto Centre street and called attention to the fact that Walnut street, a narrow street with a single track was kept in good condition and as a desirable residential street. Mr. H. B. L. Williams of Homer street called attention to the servant problem, saying that their maids relied on the car line and would be afraid to travel thru the streets from Commonwealth avenue. He also invited the petitioners who thought Commonwealth avenue such a short distance, to walk in a cold blustering day and stand waiting for a car on the bleak portions of the avenue.

In closing Mr. Wales said the inconvenience set forth by the remonstrants was simply the time it took to walk from Homer street to Commonwealth avenue.

In response to a question by Alderman Jones, Mr. C. A. Sylvester for the Street Railway Company said it was the intention of the road, in case the tracks came up, to continue exactly the same thru service to Newton Centre as was given at present.

The hearing was closed at 10.05 P. M.

The nomination of Andrew Prior as deputy sealer of weights and measures was confirmed with 10 favorable ballots.

The application of Louis Andrews to build addition to frame building on Oak street, and petitions of Bartholomew et al for sewers in Thompsonville district, of Francis P. Kenefick and Bernard Litchfield for minor's licenses, and of Henry T. Hesse as weigher of coal and measurer of wood, were referred. Petitions of Leon A. Hall et al for apportionment of betterment assessments on Chaske avenue and Winona street, of George F. Williams for renewal of auctioneer license, of R. J. Murphy for wagon license and of Mrs. Laura D. H. Kingsbury for permission to place marker on site of old brick powder house, playground Newton Centre were granted.

Hearings on April 12 were ordered on petitions of the Telephone Co. for poles on Ruthven road and for attachments on Harvard street.

On recommendations of committees, $37,161 was granted for city expenses to April 15th, $10,000 appropriated for additional construction of new Technical High School, attachments granted the Gas Light Co. on Commonwealth avenue, ward 4 and on Everett street, a minor's license granted Joseph Evers 2nd, water mains ordered in Blithdale street, Chestnut hill road, Farlow and Huntington roads, Grove land street, Kenmore street, Kent road and Suffolk road, and hearings on April 12 assigned on laying out of concrete sidewalks under betterment act on Rogers street and Lexington street and for taking land for sewer in Farlow and Huntington roads.

When an order appropriating $23,000 for purchase of equipment of the Technical High School was presented, Alderman Burr said that as the matter was not pressing and as members of the Public Works Committee think it should be considered by that committee, he would suggest reference to that committee.

The board adjourned at 10.25 o'clock.

Transportation Facilities Explained

"Transportation Facilities" was the subject of addresses by James H. Hustis, assistant general manager of the Boston and Albany railroad; and Carl A. Sylvester, assistant general manager of the Newton street railway system, before the Central club of Newtonville last evening. The addresses followed a monthly dinner of the club, which includes in its membership many well-known business and professional men living in ward 2.

Mr. Hustis dwelt chiefly on the subject of local passenger transportation. He took up the question of black smoke, regarding which there have been several proposals before the legislature and the Newton city government, and declared that the remedy was intelligent firing of locomotives, as consuming devices had not proven satisfactory.

He referred to cost of fuel, which is 11 to 15 per cent. of the cost of operation, and showed how keen is the interest of the railroad to prevent waste through careless firing. He added: "We have with good success been experimenting in the suburban service with a smokeless coal. Special instructors are being employed in educating the firemen to do more intelligent firing which will make for the overcoming of the smoke nuisance." He said that if the railroads used anthracite coal this would result in making its cost prohibitive to the individual consumer.

INTERESTING EXTRACTS

From the Minority Report of the Payne Tariff Bill

The following sentences from the report of the Democratic members of the Ways and Means Committee of Congress, on the Payne tariff bill will undoubtedly prove of interest:

The report begins with the general statement to which many will agree,—"A tariff is a tax paid by the consumer. The only proper and legitimate function of a tariff law is to raise revenue to supply the needs of the Government economically and efficiently administered. The tariff should be so arranged as to bring in to the Public Treasury the largest possible portion of the money taken from the pockets of the people by its operation with the lowest rates or none at all on the necessities of life and on luxuries of life the highest consistent with the prevention of smuggling."

There are only three ways of curing a deficiency: (1) cut down expenditures; (2) increase the taxes; (3) issue bonds. To cut down expenses which the dominant party seems utterly unable to do is the wisest and most humane way to cure a deficiency. To increase taxes where it can be avoided is unjustifiable and unpatriotic. To issue bonds, thereby creating a new indebtedness is simply postponing the evil day, for they must be paid at last with interest.

In discussing the wool schedule, the report states that the tariff taxes under the Payne bill will be almost identical with those of the Dingley bill and concludes with the words, "No man, woman or child will ever have cause to thank the framers of the Payne bill for cheaper or more abundant clothes and blankets."

Another pertinent passage is that criticizing the slight reduction in the rate on sugar—"To show how pitiful this boon is, let it be remembered that the annual per capita consumption of sugar in this country is about 80 pounds; so that a person would be compelled to eat sugar at the top of his head in order to save one nickel in fifteen months, even if the tariff should be compelled to reduce the price of sugar by 5-100 of a cent per pound, which most assuredly it would not be." Certainly that reduction may be properly denominated as a sham.

"The cost of living for the average man is increased; the advantage of wealth and power is also increased. Heavy taxes are laid on coffee, tea, and substitutes for coffee which with cocoa, butter, pepper, mustard, cinnamon, and all flavors for foods are declared to be luxuries. While figs, lemons, etc. are raised in price without hope of increasing the revenue, barley is reduced 15 cents and barley malt, 20 cents, the reason for which would be interesting to know. Every article of the laborer must have to live comfortably is heavily taxed; even the suit on his table is not exempt. This schedule was evidently prepared by the same mind which has dominated this bill—a mind certainly not unfriendly to the great trusts."

Cotton hose have fallen under their greedy gaze, and the tax on them, already too much, has been greatly increased. Cotton goods are more generally used than any other class of goods by the masses of the American people and every cent of duty laid on such fabrics is an additional tax on the people least able to pay it.

The tea tariff is a tax of 8 and 9 cents per pound on consumption, and is in direct contradiction of that "free breakfast table" about the blessings of which we heard so much when raw sugar was put on the free list in the McKinley bill. If a free breakfast table was a desirable thing in 1890, and it undoubtedly was, it is an equally desirable thing now. This tea tax will probably bring into the Treasury something like $7,000,000 per annum, and it increases the cost of living by the same amount. That sum, or twice or three that sum could have been added to the revenues by reducing the exorbitant rates on woolen manufactures alone, and at the same time reducing the cost of living, which has increased to an alarming extent in the last few years.

Is a necessary part of the equipment of every home where there are children.

Edited by Commissioner Andrew Sloan Draper, LL. D., of the New York State Education Department, the work constitutes a carefully graded course of Intellectual Development for children from the Kindergarten to the High School.

The Beginning is made with Pleasing Kindergarten Stories, Games, Songs, and Occupations which amuse and at the same time instruct the child.

The fascination of the Fairy Stories, Folk Lore, and Mythology of all Nations is next brought to bear on the growing mind, and the child is carried by its own interest from phase to phase through the various sections.

The higher branches of Culture and Education are represented in the Tenth Volume. Music, the Fine Arts and the Drama, and the Intermediate Stages are fully covered in the Intervening Volumes.

A new and carefully finished edition has just come from the press. There are ten handsome three quarter leather volumes profusely illustrated.

The work is sold exclusively upon the "Club Plan" and payments are so arranged as to suit any pocket.

WEST NEWTON PLAY GROUND

In considering a site for a play ground, the citizens of West Newton who have been requested to state their preference as to the most desirable of the three lots mentioned should take into consideration the fact that it is to provide for the children of West Newton, and for them alone. Therefore, the most centrally located, should be the most desirable.
The lot known as the "Common" at the corner of Webster and Elm streets is as central as can possibly be. It has been used for a ball field for 50 years or more. I fail to see that the other lots possess any requisites which render them as desirable and each of them are undesirable in that they are so far from the centre many children would be deprived of the privilege of using them.

A separate play ground should be provided for the younger boys and girls, not only for their physical safety, but to shield them from hearing the rough language liable to be used by men and boys. There are suitable places owned by the city, which are now used to quite an extent and could be very easily equipped with such appliances as are necessary, namely, the plots at the junction of Putnam and Washington streets, one at the junction of Pelton and Washington, and a part of Lincoln Park could be used to advantage.

AN INTERESTING EDUCATIONAL PLAN

The Twentieth Century Association is announcing a new edition of "Draper's Self Culture." Amongst the myriad of publications and reading courses for children, this work takes a prominent place. The Editor (Commissioner Andrew Sloan Draper, LL.D.) has shown a wonderful knowledge and insight into the workings and development of the juvenile intellect in the careful and scientific way in which he has graded the various volumes or sections of the work. The first section is a handy and valuable Kindergarten guide, containing a number of advisory and helpful special articles by prominent kindergarten teachers. The next section introduces the child to the wonderful of fairy stories, folk lore and mythology, and a better collection of fairy stories we have never seen. The other subjects covered in this charming work range from animal stories and natural history through exploration, invention, travel, morals, manners, business, civics, sports, pastimes, physical culture, American history, elementary science, famous poetry, wit and humor, to music, the fine arts, and the drama which completes the course. Draper's Self Culture has met with the unanimous approval of the educators and literati to whom it has been submitted, so far.
Ben B. Lindsay, whose reputation as judge of the juvenile court in Denver, Col., is well known, has said, if he were asked to recommend a work for the home, the school, the parent, the teacher or the child, he would certainly recommend Draper's Self Culture.
The Association is placing this valuable work exclusively upon the "Club Plan," and the easy monthly payments place the set well within the reach of every one. We would call our readers' attention to the fact that an announcement by the Association appears in our advertising columns.

To the Editor of the Newton Graphic:

ized to solicit funds for any baseball

CONFERENCE OF PRESIDENTS

The Conference of Club Presidents and Secretaries of the State Federation was held at Reading on Monday, March 22, the Reading Woman's Club being hostess. This is the first time that such a meeting has been held outside of Boston; in fact, it was the first time that the secretaries have been included, and judging by the large attendance and interest manifested, the State Board must feel that the innovation was in all ways a success. The hostess club showed itself superior to any such trifling annoyance, as the burning of the church where the meeting was to have been held after all arrangements had been completed, and the comforts of its guests were just as well attended to as if no change of plans had been necessary. It is said there is no great loss without some small gain. The burning of the Congregational church gave the visitors opportunity of meeting in the Old South church, formerly owned by the Congregationalists and now occupied by the Methodists, which building dates back to 1770 and is still in fine state of preservation.

There was the customary greeting from the hostess club given by the first vice-president, Mrs. Augustus K.
Barrows, the president being detained on account of a severe accident. The bits of local history that one learns from these greetings are very interesting and often points are obtained that would not be secured in any other way. Mrs. Barrows in speaking of Reading, said that it is a very old town, dating back to 1644. The old church where the meeting was held had been the meeting place for the people on all occasions, not merely for church services. In her response Miss Bacon, president of the State Federation, congratulated the Reading Woman's Club upon attaining its fifteenth anniversary which this meeting of the Federation commemorated.

The day was given up to the various standing committees of the Federation, each chairman being allowed five minutes to present suggestions and recommendations which she would like considered and, if possible, carried out at least to some extent by the clubs. After each presentation fifteen minutes was given for discussion, questions and further information concerning the subject in hand.
The opportunity was made the most of in every case and a willingness to co-operate with the committees was everywhere manifest by the club representatives. By presenting definite suggestions at this time before the programs for another year are completed, it would seem, from the interest shown at this conference, that the work of the Federation must have received considerable impetus which should bear fruit next year.

A delicious luncheon was prepared and served by the hostess club in the Masonic hall not far distant from the church. The day was in every way a delightful one and all went home with the feeling that it had been well worth while.

The Girls' Afternoon, which had been much anticipated by the members of the Waban Woman's Club, was held Monday at the home of Mrs.
A. C. Burnett and proved to be most enjoyable. The program was a varied one, beginning with "Notes on Grief" by Mrs. Janet Putnam. Other club members contributing to the music were Mrs. Burnett, Mrs. Theodore Piser, Mrs. E. A. Adler and Mrs. Donald M. L. These were assisted by Mrs. Allan Hubbard, violinist; Mrs.
Grace Bullock Bligh, cellist, and Miss Jane Mount Swift, accompanist. A social hour and tea brought the delightful afternoon to a close.

At the meeting on April 5, Mr. F.
Schuyler Matthews will lecture on "Birds and their Songs," giving piano interpretations of the latter. The hostess is to be Mrs. Frank A. Arend.

The Monday Club of Newton Highlands met on Tuesday afternoon, March 23rd at the Bigelow School.
Newton. Miss O'Connor gave a talk upon "Herculean and Pompeii," illustrated by the stereopticon. Vocal selections were rendered before the lecture. The next meeting will be with Mrs. E. P. Bosson, Hillside road.
Mr. Fred H. Daniels, supervisor of drawing in the public schools, will speak upon "Art in the Home."

Dr. James L. Barton will speak before the Social Science Club next Wednesday on "The Revolution in Turkey and its Consequences." Guests will be invited.

Miss Fanny B. Allen will give a paper before the Newtonville Woman's Guild next Tuesday afternoon, entitled, "A Visit with a Princess in Hungary."

Mr. Thomas Curley of Waltham spoke before the Social Science Club on March 21th on the subject of "Playgrounds." In former times, said Mr.
Curley, the military men and the literary men were those regarded as entitled to the front rank. To-day the point of view has changed in some degree and those who have turned nature's forces to men's uses are the ones who are most affecting the world's development. Our educational system in some measure is a failure, in that it does not fit the ordinary child for life. The vocational education is coming in to correct these mistakes and the child is being taught by doing something itself. The child has a right to have a place where the activity that is natural to it can be properly developed. And this can be reached only by the playground. In fact, to the speaker's mind, the whole hope of the child lies in the playground. But it must be the supervised playground, for the one without supervision is worse than none. Much also depends upon having the right man in charge. It is a place where personality counts even more than in the schools. Here the children receive much mental and moral development, hence the importance of having the right one in charge.

The Pierian Club met at the home of Mrs. W. D. Churchill, Wednesday, March 26. The subject for the afternoon was Kate Douglas Wiggin. Papers were read by Mrs. Cooper, Mrs.
Lees, Mrs. Child and Mrs. Thompson.
Mrs. Taylor, president of the Newton Federation of Women's Clubs, was present and gave a short talk which was very much enjoyed by all present.
Miss Vera Sawin of Waltham rendered four piano selections.

The West Newton Women's Educational Club held an interesting meeting at Players' small hall on the afternoon of Friday, March 12. Mrs. Walter A. Beedle, chairman of the Social Science committee, presented Prof.
William G. Ward, who spoke earnestly and comprehensively upon "The Growth of Social Ideals." The cake and candy sale under the care of a committee of club members proved to be an attraction and remunerative.
March 29, Prof. Henry Lawrence Southwick will give "The Cardinal Klug." Book discussion in charge of Mrs. W. G. Fitch. Social tea.

Members of the West Newton Women's Educational Club are deep in rehearsals for the drama "Breezy Point" to be given in Players' small hall on the evening of Thursday, April 1, at 8 o'clock.

Mrs. William Moore entertained the Shakespeare Club at her home, 55 Hillside road, on Saturday afternoon, March 20. A lecture was given by Mrs. Buxton of Peabody, entitled "Journeys Through Ireland." St.
Patrick Day favors and decorations added to the enjoyment of the occasion.

The Auburndale Review Club met with Mrs. Pickard, on Berkeley place, Tuesday, March 23. Education, Scientific Work and Architecture and Building in South America, were the subjects considered, and all the papers were of great interest. On Tuesday evening, April 6, Senorita Hinda-bro will give a lecture on South America in the chapel of the Congregational church, to which the public is cordially invited.

NEWTON Y. M. C. A.

Mrs. Potter Bailey will be the speaker at the next regular meeting of Woman's Auxiliary which will be held March 31st, in the parlor.

The debate, Tuesday evening, March 23, was the most interesting of the season. The contestants were allowed unlimited time and took about 45 minutes each. The subject up for discussion—Resolved, that Compulsory Vaccination is necessary for the protection of Public Health. Dr. M. E.
Gleason supported the affirmative. Mr.
Allan C. Emery the negative. Opinion as to the merits of the debaters was about evenly divided. The audience voted for the negative, while the judges voted for the affirmative. Willard Day, president of the debating club, presided. The judges were Rev.
H. Grant Person, D. F. Barber, and P. W. Gannse.

OLD RESIDENT DEAD

Mr. William Stearns, for more than sixty years a well known and highly respected resident of Newton Centre, died on Tuesday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. W. A. Bemis in Dorchester. Mr. Stearns was a native of Lunenburg, Vt., where he was born 87 years ago, but has made his home in Newton nearly all his life, where he has carried on a successful business as a farmer. He was a member of the Veteran Firemen's Association and an attendant at the First church. He is survived by three children, Mr. George W. Stearns of Newton Centre, Mrs. F.
H. Chapman of Newton and Mrs.
Bemis of Dorchester.

Funeral services were held this afternoon at the home of the deceased on Parker street, Rev. Dr. Noyes officiating and the interment was at the Newton cemetery.

Saturday at 8.00 o'clock in the Drill hall, Newtonville, the Newton High School Gym Team gave its first annual exhibition before 500 people. There were exhibitions by the various elements illustrating their work. Crocker, '09, and Harlow, '12, gave fine individual exhibitions.

The program included work on parallel bars, basket ball relay, horizontal bar, wand rush, flying rings, tumbling, springboard and mat work, and concluding with the battle of the crusaders, between 1911 and 1912.

Wednesday the Gym Team held an exhibition in Drill hall at Newtonville with Brookline High, before 250 people. Considering it was the first thing of this kind attempted by schools it was a huge success. Crocker and Harlow again gave fine individual exhibitions.

G. A. R. MEETING

The last regular meeting of Charles Ward Post, Grand Army of the Republic, was an especially important and pleasant one.

Two new members were taken in at this meeting of the 18th inst. They were Mr. Albert J. Beale, a "recruit" who served in the navy, and Mr.
Henry A. Bonnell, of the army, both curious to note, from New Jersey, though they never knew each other before that night. The admission of Mr. Bonnell was by transfer card.
The muster-in of Mr. Beale was very impressive, the rules and regulations of the order being carried out in full by Commander James E. Reid, Senior Vice Commander Hosea Hyde, Junior Vice Commander John Ryan, Officer of the Day Samuel Lantry, and Officer of the Guard John Flood. In the absence of Comrade Putnam, reported as quite ill, Comrade Isaac F. Kingsbury filled the post of Chaplain.

The commander's charge and gift of a Grand Army badge to Mr. Beale were supplemented by Past Commad-

COMPOSER'S NIGHT

On Monday evening, Madame Isidora Martinez presented an interesting and remarkable program, largely of her own compositions. Mr. Nikolai Sokoloff, the brilliant young Russian violinist, made his bow to a Newton audience on this occasion. Mr. Sokoloff has already achieved distinction as an artist of marked good taste and brilliant technique, to which Madame Martinez added a sympathetic accompaniment. The opening and closing numbers of the program were sung by The Polymnia, (Madame Martinez, musical director) which was reinforced by ladies from the Handel and Hayden Society and from the Elliot church choir.

Part I was miscellaneous in character, with songs by Miss Edith Swift, contralto; Miss Jenni MacLellan, soprano; Mr. Oscar F. Chamberlain, baritone; and an "Adagio" by Rios, and "Zigeunerweisen" by Nacher, played by Mr. Sokoloff. Much to the regret of the audience, Madame Martinez asked to be excused from singing the Jewel song from "Faust," for which she had been by request put upon the program. Miss Swift has a beautiful velvety voice which she uses with spirit and feeling. Her charming personality placed her at once in touch with her audience. Miss MacLellan, who is a pupil of Madame Martinez, is no stranger to Newton people, among whom she has already won warm commendation. Mr. Chamberlain's voice is a full, rich baritone. He flings himself into his music with an abandon that sweeps his audience along with him, producing marked dramatic effect. From the first note Mr. Sokoloff played, his hearers accorded him the hushed attention which is the highest tribute an audience can pay an artist. To the imperious demand for an encore, he responded with the "Humoresque" by Dvorak. Yes, I know; every violinist plays it, and it is wellnigh worn thread-bare—but not when it is played as Mr. Sokoloff played it. Never have I heard it played with such exquisite delicacy, such subtle humor, such breadth of tone and handling—truly, it was a revelation!

Part II was made up entirely of compositions by Madame Martinez, giving proof of the wide range of her talent, and making this a "Composer's Night" of varied and delightful character.

"Brigade Bands" is a choral and orchestral ballad scored for full orchestra, soloists, and chorus. An interlude from it was arranged for 3 violins, cello, and flute. Madame Martinez was here assisted by Mr. Lawrence Gould, Miss May Casey, Miss Ruth Ivy, violins; Miss Edith Soden, cello; Mr. Leonard Park, flute. The interlude is indescribably delicate and beautiful, and made a most attractive beginning to Part II. The quartet "The Mistletoe Bough" (from an unfinished opera) furnished a touch of comedy. It was sung by Miss MacLellan, Mrs. Arthur F. Jones, Mr. John Worcester Merrill, and Mr. Sidney S. Colburn.

Mrs. Locke being indisposed, and therefore, unable to appear, the "Sapphic Ode" was necessarily omitted. Mr. Roger S. Browne, who has a clear, strong, tenor voice of excellent quality, sang the solo, "Those pure, grey eyes" with pleasing effect. Miss MacLellan's pure, sweet, brilliant soprano showed to particularly good advantage in "Living Poems," and in the graceful setting Madame Martinez has given to "Who is Sylvia?" while "Valley Forge" declares Madame's ability to create stirring patriotic themes. In "The Contrabandista," Mr. Chamberlain had again a song with snap and fire and brilliance; but "My love is like a red, red rose" showed him equally at home in the quiet, delicacy such a song requires.

If Mr. Sokoloff pleased and interested his audience in his first appearance, he captivated that interest, in the "Meditation" and "Espagnol" written for and dedicated to him by Madame Martinez. He evidently loves them;—he certainly played them "con amore," and Madame Martinez, at the piano, responded, and in turn inspired by her magnificent playing.

Of the closing number, the "Farewell to Weetamoo" it is difficult to speak adequately on one hearing. The text book is from Whittier's poem, "The Bride of Pennacook." It represents the lament of the Indian women over the death of the lovely maiden Weetamoo, and it is an unusual and interesting composition, characterized by beautiful minor harmonies, interrupted by occasional wild bursts of wailing grief. The orchestration adds here and there an exquisite touch, as if Nature mourned too, and the birds and woods murmured their grief. It is written for, and is dedicated to The Polymnia, and was sung by them, accompanied by orchestra. Mr. Gould, violin; Miss Soden, cello; Mr. Park, flute; Madame Martinez at the piano; with a contralto solo, by Miss Swift.

A good sized and very appreciative audience gathered, coming from Cambridge and Boston as well as from the Newtons. Madame Martinez is to be congratulated on the success of her concert, as well as upon the significance and beauty of her compositions. A group of pretty girl ushers, charmingly gowned, added an attractive feature to the occasion.
